2,500 MARCH IN ARMY DAY CELEBRATION

Mansfielders Jam All Vantage Points as Procession Moves Over Business District.

GIVE STIRRING SALUTE

Paraders Display Strength of Civilian Defense, Backing Up Men in Service.

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

Proudly and solemnly, Mansfield last night honored its sons in Uncle Sam's armed forces from Australia to Iceland and displayed its growing civilian defense strength that is ready to back up the boys on the far-flung battlefields of this, the greatest of all wars.

An Army Day parade that the city will long remember unfolded before an estimated 15,000 spectators the significance of war and what it means to the folks back home. From the sidewalks and every vantage point in the business district eager men, women, and children watched the salute to the city's forces enrolled to give everything until victory comes.

More than 2,500 Mansfielders from tiny tots to elderly fathers and mothers of service men marched to the tempo of bands and drum corps

It mattered little to the marchers and the vast crowd that they were celebrating the anniversary of the United States entry into a war with Germany in 1917. They were not thinking of that war last night. Their sole thought was to win this one promptly and effectively.

Never before had Mansfield paid so much attention to Army Day, but it has never been so important to win a war as it is this time.

Starting promptly at 7:30 p. m., the parade moved along Park avenue to Central park, around the park, down North Main street to Fourth street, west to Mulberry street and then south to Third street.

Solid lines of spectators hemmed in the paraders over virtually the entire route. Heavy clouds hung in the west and scattered rain drops fell on the big crowd midway through the pa-

OPA REVEALS RATION RULES TO BE RELAXED

Wants Defense Workers and Police, Health Agencies to Get Transportation.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Price administration officials today revealed that auto rationing restrictions will soon be relaxed to insure the sale of at least 300,000 new cars this year.

The OPA, officials say, finds itself in somewhat of a dilemma because the motor car rationing regulations have worked too well Harassed price regulators now discover that the severities of the rationing program have scared away the very buyers that the program was designed to accommodate. Consequently, there will be a loosening of the restrictions to encourage the sale of some 300,000 new autos.

The total represents the available new automobiles outside of the government stockpile of 400,000 new cars. OPA wants to get them into the hands of the public within a year and avoid the storage headache and the hazards of deterioration.

By relaxing rationing regulations, OPA does not intend, however, to create any new eligible users, but it does want to get new cars to those entitled to them—law enforcement agencies, physicians, surgeons, visiting nurses, ministers, rural mail carriers and defense workers.

All told, OPA wants some 7,500,000 people to have cars and the tires and gasoline to keep them going.

So far, however, many of those in the eligible classifications have refrained from applying to local rationing boards for permission to buy a new car Afraid that tires and even autos might be commandeered, the drivers ask: "What's the use of buying a new car?"

OPA officials said their fears were groundless.

Both Sides Lose Heavily; Bengal Sea Fight Near

Enemy Makes Third Advance In Three Days, Bomb Rear Of U. S. Lines.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — For the third time in as many days the war department said today that the Japanese had made gains on Batan peninsula in furious around-the-clock assault.

"Casualties were heavy on both sides," today's communique said.

It was the first time since the Japanese started their heavy attacks on Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright's lines that the official reports told of heavy losses to the American-Filipino forces as well as the Japanese

The communique said that the enemy continued attacks on the center of Wainwright's line, stretching across the 13-mile-wide peninsula from Manila bay to the China sea, throughout yesterday "with some success"

Japanese bombardment of Wainwright's rear lines and the south coast of Batan, across a narrow strip of water from Corregidor fortress, "was particularly severe," the communique added.

A low-flying amphibian plane was destroyed on the water of Manila bay by an American anti-aircraft battery firing horizontally.

Enemy artillery from the shore of Cavite province across Manila bay from the tip of Batan shelled Corregidor and Fort Hughes unremittingly for two hours yesterday afternoon; the communique added, but caused no damage. The guns of American forts in the

Allied Sea And Air Forces On Prowl For Nipponese Attack Unit

(By United Press)

A major sea and air battle for control of the Bay of Bengal and the approaches to India appeared at hand today as the war of the Pacific entered its fifth month.

Dispatches from battle zones indicated that British warships and air forces and presumably American flying fortresses are searching the Bay of Bengal for a strong Japanese naval force that already has brought the war to two of India's coastal cities in bombing attacks.

There was speculation that British warships might be moving up through the Indian ocean from the south to challenge the Japanese fleet in the Bay of Bengal.

But in the first four-months phase of the war in the Far East the Japanese have attained marked naval superiority in the Pacific and it appeared that it would be up to Allied air power—particularly U S bombers—to deliver the real challenge.

Flying fortresses already have delivered two heavy blows to the Japanese forces thrusting into the Bay of Bengal and closer to India—at Rangoon and the Japanese-seized Andaman islands—and hopes of halting the enemy east of India rest largely upon these dreadnaughts of the skies.

This was the situation on the main warfronts at the start of the fifth month of United States participation in the war:

COLUMBUS—Joseph T Ferguson, state auditor, coupled his formal declaration of candidacy for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination with an accusation that Republican Gov John W Bricker has lagged in America's war drive.

In his announcement address at Barberton last night, Ferguson asked a local party rally if it was advisable to allow "Roosevelt-haters to carrying the responsibility of government when they would rather see this nation lose the war than to see Roosevelt win the peace and our battle for the rights of the common man."

U. S. Navy Officer Goes Over Side in Heavy Weather.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — In a brief and undetailed communique the navy announced last night that Rear Admiral J. W. Wilcox, jr., 60, was lost overboard in heavy weather during normal cruising operations The date and location of the tragedy were not revealed.

Wilcox, a native of Atlanta, Ga., became the second American admiral to lose his life in the war. Rear Admiral Isaac Kidd was killed during the Pearl Harbor attack.

Surviving Wilcox are his widow, the former Miss Caroline Manigault of Charleston, S. C., and two children, Arthur M. Wilcox, 21, and Mary Manigault Wilcox, 11.

City Sees Greatest Army Day Parade With Mixed Emotions

By William F. Murray.

Army Day took on added significance last night for the thousands of Mansfielders who paid tribute to the U. S. armed forces on land, sea and in the air in the city's greatest Army Day parade in history

Mansfield was proud last night. Marchers held their heads high, bands blared boldly, flags flapped smartly in the breeze and friends and relatives along the line of march cheered.

The show wasn't for themselves, however, it was for the hundreds of Mansfied boys and men now serving in training camps and on far-flung battlefronts.

Mansfield was gay. You could feel a patriotic current run through the spectators as the paraders passed. Children ran alongside of the marchers while others rode gayly decorated bicycles Friends called out to relatives and other friends among the ranks.

Mansfield was sad—but tried bravely to hide it. Here and there a mother, whose son was somewhere on active duty far away from home, wiped away a tear. Beside her, a father saluted with wavering arm as the flag swept by.

Mansfield was brave last night. Although it appeared to be a festive occasion, beneath the surface, mothers, fathers, husbands, wives, sisters and brothers, all knew that the going ahead was probably going to be tough—but they smiled about it.

Spectators found every possible vantage point to view the marchers. They hung out of office-building windows, climbed the bandstand in Central park, stood on narrow ledges, were hoisted on the shoulders of friends, and some boys even climbed the traffic light standard at the head of Park avenue west.

Eight dashing majorettes with the Mansfield Senior high school band gave the start of the parade a colorful touch.

Rain threatened shortly after the opening of the parade but

Calls Indian Ocean, Near East Keys To Free World's Destiny

"The destiny of the free world may be decided this year in the Indian ocean and in the Near East," Spencer D. Irwin, associate editor and foreign affairs columnist of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, told members and guests of the Rotary club at the Mansfield-Leland hotel this noon

"Whatever the cost the United Nations must prevent the Germans and the Japanese from making physical contact. Their plan to do so is obvious from the Japanese thrusts against India and from the coming counter-offensive of the Germans not only in Russia, but in Libya," Irwin said.

"Japan today, thanks to her rapid conquest of Malaya, the Netherlands East Indies and Burma, is a 'have' nation. She has turned the great British naval base at Singapore, the key to the Indian ocean, into a Japanese center for further offensive operations. Her object in the Indian ocean is two-fold: to attack India and to carry on raiding operations along the east coast of Africa to break up the Anglo-American ship lanes that carry supplies to Egypt, the Near East and Russia.

"In Europe Hitler has sustained severe losses in Russia. This will not prevent him, however, from starting a vicious offensive in southern Russia to gain the Caucasus oil fields. Hitler must have oil. He is not running low now, but if he is

INVENTOR HELD IN DRAFT CASE

Ohioan Charged With Failure to Report For Induction

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Antonio Pannutti, 28-year-old Warren inventor, today was held at Warren on a federal charge of failing to report for army induction last March 24.

Pannutti contended he was in Washington discussing his inventions with ordnance officials on the date his draft board ordered him to report for induction.

"He claimed his work with Washington was much more important than anything else" said Lester Kauffman, U. S district attorney. "We learned later that the devices he submitted to Washington were nothing new."

HARASS AXIS

Saboteurs Among Oppressed Peoples Launch Campaign.

LONDON —(U.P.)— An underground army of oppressed peoples in Europe, including Germany and Italy, has started a reign of anti-Axis sabotage, intelligence reports reaching allied governments claimed today.

The reported wave of sabotage, passive resistance and guerrilla warfare, designed to hinder and harass the Axis war plans by hitting at the war feeder factories and industries, was said to be spreading over much of the continent.

PROPOSE LIMIT

Union Would Put Ceiling Of $25,000 On Incomes.

DETROIT—(AP)—United Automobile Workers (CIO) executive board proposed today a legal limit of $25,000 a year on family and individual incomes for the war's duration, in return for which union workers would accept non-negotiable defense bonds in lieu of all overtime pay for more than 40 hours a week.

COOKING SCHOOL SESSIONS OPEN

900 Take Pledge of Health as Lecturer Begins First of Four Meetings.

Mansfield homemakers did something at the opening session of The News-Journal's four-day cooking school today that they had never done before—collectively at least They took "The Pledge of Health," in co-operation with the Federal Office of Defense, Health and Welfare service.

More than 900 women were on hand when the school opened in the Ohio theater at 9 a. m. with Mrs. Emily Lautz, nationally known food authority and lecturer on homemaking; on the platform ready to emphasize the great part proper and healthful foods will play in winning the war.

Mrs. Lautz lectured today on the preservation of vitamins and she made it plain that vitamins in cooked vegetables could be preserved only if the vegetables were cooked in as little water as possible.

She illustrated her point by using potatoes as an example. To cook five potatoes Mrs. Lautz suggests that they be covered with only one-fourth of a cup of

Injuries Fatal To Soldier Hurt In Crash On 42

Injuries received early yesterday when the automobile in which he was riding skidded 172 feet and collided with another car on U S. route 42 near the Five Points proved fatal today to Robert Ryan, jr., 18-year-old soldier from Mesa, Ariz.

Ryan, who was en route from Cleveland to his post at Patterson field, Dayton, with three soldier companions when the accident occurred, died at Samaritan hospital in Ashland at 3.15 a. m. of a fractured skull.

Ryan had been a passenger in an auto driven by Joseph L. Novak, 21, of Cleveland, who was also stationed at Patterson field. Novak and two other soldiers from the Dayton post, Roy L. Henley, 20, Dayton, and James L. Thompson, 19, Akron, escaped with cuts and bruises.

Alex Levine, 28, Cleveland, driver of the other auto, received a fractured shoulder, a broken nose and numerous cuts and bruises. Levine's car crashed with Novak's after the latter's auto had skidded across the road in a wide sweep, officers said

Ryan's parents are expected to arrive in Ashland late today or tomorrow to arrange for funeral services. His body was removed to the Heyl funeral home.

Dale Hammond, Ashland county sheriff, said that no charges had been placed against either of the drivers but that an investigation of the accident was being continued.

SEES INVASION

Chinese Envoy Says Japan Will Attack Siberia.

AKRON — (INS) — Belief that India before long will enter the war on the side of the United Nations and the opinion that Japan soon will invade Siberia were left in Akron today by the Chinese ambassador to the United States, Dr. Hu Shih.

Invasion of Siberia, he told an Akron audience, would be for the dual purpose of dividing Russian forces so that nation's full strength could not be thrown against Germany, and of preventing the establishment of U. S. air bases from which Japan might be bombed.

Dr. Hu said the summer of 1943 should see the United States in a position to score a knockout blow over the Axis powers.

RENEWS PLEA

Ohio Chamber of Commerce Asks Cut In Expenditures.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — The Ohio chamber of commerce today renewed its request for a reduction of federal non-war expenditures and specifically questioned a proposed appropriation of $637,000,000 for unemployment relief in 1943 "when budgeting manpower of the nation is in immediate prospect."

The chamber suggested the U. S. comptroller general be instructed to survey federal agencies and report those which are not absolutely essential and could be suspended for the war's duration.

BOAT IN FLAMES

Fire Companies Rush to Dock to Meet Burning Steamer.

EAST LIVERPOOL —(AP)—The Ohio river steamer Smoky City, operating out of Pittsburgh, was reported enveloped in flames today as the boat docked here.

Fire broke out shortly after the steamer passed through the locks at dam No. 7. Crew members signaled to shore and several fire companies were at the dock as she arrived.

HOPEFUL: Negotiations For India Freedom Move Forward

BULLETIN

LONDON—(U P)—The war cabinet was reported today to be prepared to compromise on Indian demands for control of home defense. A final decision on the mission of Sir Stafford Cripps in India may come in the next 48 hours, it was understood.

(By International News Service)

NEW DELHI—An atmosphere of reviving hope prevailed today as Sir Stafford Cripps went forward with his delicate Indian independence negotiations under the watchful eye of Col. Louis Johnson, President Roosevelt's special envoy to India

Johnson was reported to be in almost constant touch with the White House as Cripps once again received Indian leaders No definite idea of the present attitude of the All-India National Congress party was obtainable pending a working committee meeting this afternoon, but observers thought that some adjustments, particularly regarding defense, may have been made in its original draft declaration

Meanwhile, Britain's reply to Indian demands for modifications in the proferred plan for post-war independence was believed delivered by Cripps to Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, president of the working committee of the All-India National Congress party.

The British war cabinet in London had met far into the night to formulate a reply to Indian demands which it was hoped would satisfy all concerned. The particular stumbling bloc to acceptance of the plan by Indian leaders has been the demand that an Indian be placed in the nation's defense post.

Announcement of the final results of his dealings with heads of the various factions in India was expected to be made by Sir Stafford sometime Wednesday night.

Reports were widespread that intervention of President Roosevelt to urge a quick settlement of the Indian problem may lead to a successful conclusion of Sir Stafford's mission

BREAK-THROUGH: Reds Rip Nazi Lines At Staraya Russa

BULLETIN

LONDON—(U P)—Russian troops were reported by the Moscow radio today to have recaptured 30 more villages from the Germans and to have seized large quantities of arms and supplies in new successes.

(By Associated Press)

Russia's armies have broken into German lines southeast of Lake Ilmen on the bloody Staraya Russa battlefield, the Berlin radio acknowledged today, while Soviet dispatches indicated that Adolf Hitler now was throwing clouds of warplanes into the struggle as a prelude to the Nazi spring offensive.

Red army dispatches said the intensified aerial assault cost the Germans 415 planes in eight days, with Soviet losses held to 84. On Easter Sunday alone, dispatches said, Russian fliers and gunners destroyed 119 German aircraft in sky combat and attacks on Nazi airdromes.

A Berlin broadcast said strong, tank-led Russian forces smashed into Nazi positions in the Lake Ilmen sector, where remnants of the German 16th army have been trapped for many weeks, but declared that the Germans had "adjusted" their lines after heavy bayonet fighting.

A bulletin from Hitler's field headquarters conceded that the Russians were pressing attacks "on several sectors" of the long, thawing front, but asserted that "our own offensive operations brought further successes." No details were given.

The high command said 69

Tire Orders Hit Athletic Programs In County Schools

Athletic departments of Richland county high schools were hit today by a federal tire rationing ruling which restricts use of school buses to transportation of pupils to and from classes, and prohibiting their use for transportation of athletic teams.

Inwood Smith, former Mansfield high school and Ohio State athletic star, who announced the ruling as state tire rationing coordinator, said in Columbus that the rule applied only to buses using tires issued under the rationing regulations.

"We have no jurisdiction over buses using tires purchased before the rationing regulations became effective in December," Smith said, "but we are trying to discourage those buses from transporting athletes. If they do, they are violating the spirit of the conservation program, if not the letter of the regulations."

Mansfield high school long ago discontinued the use of school buses for athletic trips, hiring commercial buses or using private cars instead, so the new ruling will not affect the Mansfield athletic situation.

However, it was reported at the

CHAPTER XVI

Anna's diagnosis of Parris' state of mind was correct. Her observation was a neat compound of native peasant shrewdness and affectionate intuition. Parris was apprehensive and miserable for precisely the reasons she had named.

Today, for the first time since —since— that dreadful day, he walked boldly down through the evergreen groves toward the pond. The branches reached across the space between rows and touched. He pushed them aside and presently came out on the little clearing about the "secret lake."

He turned and went quickly to the apple tree. The young leaves covered the branches. He put his back to the trunk and laid his arms along the two large drooping limbs. He wanted to talk to her. He saw her now, clearly once more.

"Renee, my darling. I love you. I didn't know then how much. I know now."

At the sound of the words which startled him back into the present, all sense of her presence was gone. He glimpsed, for an instant only, the flutter of her blue dress, down the long avenue of spruces.

Time had begun to pass. It wouldn't ever stop now. It would go every day, faster and faster. A stirring, unhappy, frightening thought.

Aberdeen college ended its college year with the usual dull and repetitious ceremonies held during what always seemed the hottest week of the year. Parris avoided most of the events.

A week later Madame von Eln left for St. Louis for hospital observation, and Parris yielded to Drake's insistence on a camping trip His grandmother returned to Kings Row before him, looking less well than when she left.

He went to Anna. "You've got to tell me! What did the doctors say?"

"Nothing new. I must tell you, Madame is not well. Just go on as if everything were as usual, Parris. Don't let her think you are worried about her."

"You're not telling me everything, Anna."

"Run along now, Parris. I'll tell you if there's any danger."

It was in town that afternoon that Parris learned from Colonel Skeffington of Mrs. Tower's death. "Very strange," the Colonel said. "Nobody knew she was ill at all, not at all. If you notice anything curious over there, son—"

Parris found Dr. Tower reading He appeared as calm and unperturbed as always. He nodded gravely in response to Parris' rather breathless greeting.

"I just heard a few minutes ago about Mrs. Tower. I'm very sorry."

Dr. Tower looked as if he were not really listening He inclined his head again.

Parris stammered a little, and continued: "I was away, you know. My grandmother was away, too, in St. Louis, or you would have heard from us."

An awkward silence fell between the two. Parris fumbled with some papers. Dr. Tower continued to look at him, but more absently than before "Parris, I like your good manners. You are a credit to your grandmother, and I hope you appreciate exactly what she has done for you You are the only young man I've seen in Kings Row who isn't a bumpkin"

Parris flushed darkly this time. "My grandmother is pretty fine, sir. She certainly is. But—but, really—"

"Madame von Eln came to see me just before she went to St Louis. She wanted to know if you'd be ready to go to Vienna in September."

Parris' breath went out of him "Oh" His tone was dreary

"What's the matter?"

"Well, you see, Dr. Tower. Grandmere treats me as if I were a child I just—just sort of feel like she ought to have told me."

'You'll have to do some stiff reading"

Parris sighed. "All right Do you suppose—did she say anything about going with me?"

The doctor stared this time. "No, nothing at all" He spoke almost kindly "I'm sure that would be rather a severe undertaking for her—at her age."

"She's not so old. But I guess she's pretty sick."

"Parris, I undertook this work with you with decided misgivings. I guess it's fair to you to tell you that it has been a pleasure."

Parris blushed. He was curiously touched, and couldn't think of anything to say.

"Thank you."

"I hope that when you get into your work in Vienna you'll find that—all of this has been a help. Some of it has been inadequate, some of it has been—is in advance of any institutional study you could have gotten anywhere. I think some of it will prove useful. But don't be fooled by Vienna, just because it's Vienna. There are old fogies, and crazy experimenters, too, in that city. It's important that you develop some kind of point of view, a way of judging and estimating things that will help you keep on an even keel."

Parris settled back in his chair. Whenever Dr. Tower started like this he was in for a long, but usually happy, digression.

This one lasted until late afternoon. Dr. Tower talked of medieval history, of man's mental comfort in the centuries before science turned his thinking along disturbing channels, of man's unhappiness because he really has no home in the universe

They discussed new attitudes toward hysteria, new concepts of the escape complex and its treatment, the appropriate point of view for a physician working in the world of insanity.

They drank coffee together, Dr. Tower swinging one knee over the arm of his chair—an unprecedented informality.

Parris felt a quick surge of curiosity. He was sure that this man was really able and intelligent—probably a very fine doctor. What was the matter? What landed him here in Kings Row with his sole contact these lectures and talks to a medical student?

Dr. Tower finished his coffee, and set the cup on the table.

Parris sighed. "Maybe it would be more sensible for me just to be a doctor, and not start out to specialize in any sort of way, but—"

"Well?"

"It's just that I think I really want to. It sounds a lot more interesting."

"It is. It is a vast field for research. I don't know if the time has come for this kind of study, or not. It looks as if it might come now There is a stir in Vienna. Whether it's the real thing or not I fancy no one can say."

"I guess I keep thinking of Lucy Carr, the—"

"Oh, yes The insane woman you played to. Oh, yes, yes."

"And Benny Singer."

"You don't feel such people—well, sort of objectionable?"

Parris looked as if he didn't understand what the doctor meant. He shook his head "No, sir. Never I liked Mrs. Carr, and I like Benny Singer"

Dr. Tower half closed his eyes. "I sometimes think the whole thing is a problem for the poet."

"Because he's sort of madman, too?"

"The madness of poets is simply a larger sanity that comes from a special vision I suspect poets, and great writers of other kinds — novelists, know more about the way the human mind works, and is likely to work, than all of the psychologists rolled into one."

Dr. Tower stood up. He pushed books and papers about impatiently. "Well, I hope you've enjoyed the chat. I did. Now, get on with you, Parris Mitchell. You've got a summer of tough work ahead. I won't fool you about that. We'll get those letters off to Vienna, and then we'll know in a month or so how things stand."

Parris was deeply concerned for Drake, whose pride had been dealt a telling blow by Dr. Gordon. That Drake was in love with Louise Gordon, Parris did not doubt—nor that frail, pretty Louise, weakened in strength and purpose by the united wills of overwhelming patents, loved Drake.

Because Drake was considered "wild," and the "town was talking," Louise was forbidden to see him. The two of them had quarreled. Parris interceding in hopes of salving Drake's petulance, easing Louise's pain. How, he wondered, could Dr. and Mrs. Gordon be such pillars of virtue in Kings Row and at the same time so determined to make their daughter miserable? He felt again the strange working of that intuition that made him doubt accepted values. They were steely — the Gordons. Couldn't they see that Louise was—he supposed "sweet" was the word, and really in love? And that Drake, for all his swaggering, was a fine boy, and lonely?

"Listen, Drake."

"I know that tone of voice. You're going to have some kind of a sensible suggestion. I don't want sensible suggestions. I want you to say something to make me feel better."

"I was just going to ask you why you don't marry Louise, right off. You're your own boss, as Louise said. You've got enough money—"

"Not to get married."

"What do you mean?"

"I'm not 21 yet, Parris. The Farmers Exchange bank hasn't got much to say about what I do, but they don't have to give me a cent more'n they think I need to live on."

"But I thought—"

"I've got a checking account. But it's just about three thousand dollars, or was, I mean. I've spent a lot of it. Can you imagine what old Mr. Curley, he's the trustee, would say if I told him I wanted some of my money so I could get married? He's already been after me about spending so much."

"Could you start in some kind of business, do you think?"

"I've been turning that over and over in my mind. You know I've been talking to Peyton Graves. He's going to work in real estate."

"Sure enough. Old Peyton Graves. I didn't know he had any get up about him."

"Peyton's got the same idea I had about that tract of land right up there by the public school. He said if I could get my money out and put some in with him—his uncle would let him have some—we could swing in together and make us a lot of money."

Parris looked respectfully at Drake. Drake talked like a man of affairs.

"Are you going to do it?"

"Can't. I just halfway hinted to old Curley something about an investment, and he nearly jumped on me. Not a cent till I'm 21! I'd borrow it against my inheritance, but I don't expect anybody's let me have it. Curley'd stop anything, I guess."

CARE FOR YOUR CAR—for your Country!

From where I sit . . .

by Joe Marsh

VERY OFTEN these days, I get to thinking about the soldier boys at camp. And the sailors, too.

What worries me is . . . what happens when they get a day off after working their heads off all week? They go to town . . . and what then?

What happens? The answer is . . . mostly nothing! Because most towns near army camps just don't have nearly enough entertainment facilities to take care of the soldiers on leave. So the boys just stand around, leaning against lampposts or sitting on doorsteps. And sometimes, the local townsfolk find themselves wondering what's changed the town . . . instead of pitching in to help the boys have a good time in decent surroundings.

In many towns, however, the situation is better. Many towns have nice, community places where a soldier can go sit down and "chew the fat" and enjoy some cake and milk, or maybe a good glass of beer. The boys like that. And they're not likely to get in trouble . . . because common sense tells you nothing can be wrong about a couple of glasses of beer.

There's another reason, too. The beer industry is cooperating with the army and with the law-enforcement officers to help keep the places where beer is sold, clean and decent. The brewers don't want their beer sold to soldiers in places where bad conditions exist . . . and they're right.

Seems to me that we Americans ought to get together and do everything we can to make things pleasant for the boys who are in training. They're doing their duty . . . maybe we have some duties, too, in this direction.

There are lots of ways of helping. We ought to support them all. All of us have our part to play in winning this war . . . and making life a little easier for the boys in camp is something we all can do something about.

Allied Sea and Air Forces on Prowl For Jap Naval Force Off India.

warships and long-range reconnaissance planes searched for enemy naval forces in an attempt to check Japan's sweep of conquest, now extending more than 5,000 from the Solomon islands westward to the shores of India.

BURMA—Units of the regular U. S. Army air forces joined veteran American volunteer pilots with the Chinese forces as Japan's two-way drive up through Burma offered new grave threats to the Allied front.

The Japanese were pushing upon the Burmese temporary capital despite heavy losses at the hands of Chinese troops led by Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, U. S. A. Along the Irrawaddy valley British imperial forces fell back farther under heavy Japanese pressure, taking up positions less than 60 miles south of the Minbu oil fields after carrying out a "scorched earth" withdrawal that wrecked oil installations and other important objectives.

AUSTRALIA—Allied air forces including American bombers marked the start of the fifth month of the war with new attacks on Japan's "invasion bases" off northern Australia, bombing Japanese-held airdromes and shipping centers at Lae and Gasmata on New Guinea, Rabaul on New Britain island and driving off Japanese air raiders which struck at Port Moresby for the 23rd time.

A number of Japanese planes were destroyed or damaged in the attacks. Lieut Gen. E. K. Smart, Australia's new representative on the Pacific war council in Washington, conferred with Gen. Douglas MacArthur before departing for the United States.

Allied Fliers Blast Jap Base at Lae

MELBOURNE—(INS)—United Nations fliers roared out from the Australian coast in a slashing attack on the battered Japanese base at Lae on the island of New Guinea today, bombing runways and buildings at the airdrome and damaging several enemy planes.

Continuation of the unremitting air offensive was revealed coincident with announcement by Air Minister Arthur S. Drakeford that arrival of huge supplies from the United States will enable Australia to be protected by "a series of air umbrellas" in event of attempted Japanese invasion.

Drakeford's statement was preceded by official announcement that Australia is now receiving "all requested" lease-lend materials from the United States, amply proving that the forces opposing the Axis have succeeded to the fullest in keeping open the vital lines of communication across the south Pacific.

Madras Gets Air Raid Warning

BOMBAY — (UP) — Air raid warnings sounded in Madras City today between 4 a. m. and 6 a. m.

It was the first air raid warning sounded in Madras, large Indian city on the Bay of Bengal coast about 250 miles north of Ceylon, and followed bombings yesterday of two other Indian coastal cities.

(The dispatch did not reveal whether any bombs had been dropped on Madras or whether any hostile planes were sighted.)

Japanese bombs fell on India proper for the first time yesterday when carrier-based planes attacked Vizagapatam and Cocanada, north of Madras.

water, brought to a five-minute boil, and then simmered for 20 mintues. "And don't forget to use a lid," she added.

Every session of the cooking school will reveal the vitamin-saving way to cook other vegetables as the rule followed in potatoes cannot be applied to other vegetables, Mrs. Lautz said.

The audience today enthusiastically followed the food lecturer's words and demonstrations as Mrs. Lautz talked in a neighborly fashion as she went about making a vegetable casserole, baking stuffed tomatoes, preparing a fresh pork shoulder roast and fixing French fried potatoes.

She told the women that there were seven necessary foods to consider when planning meals and listed them as milk, seafood, fruit, meat, eggs, green vegetables and bread with adequate vitamins.

Breads and pastries were both included in today's demonstrations. Mrs. Lautz showed her audience how to make an apricot fruit cake, an apple sauce pie, spicy apple all-bran muffins, pastry mix and garlic bread.

As she worked Mrs. Lautz took opportunity to mention all the modern appliances in her completely equipped kitchen installed on the stage through the co-operation of Mansfield merchants and she called attention to various devices that were time-savers in any kitchen.

Pencils and note books were busy while the school was in progress as the women jotted down helpful suggestions that they expect to follow in their own kitchen from now on.

Mrs. Lautz was introduced by Gilmore R. Hiett, advertising manager of The News-Journal, who welcomed the audience. Mrs. Lautz presented her assistant, Mrs. Christine Stanton, whose husband, Sergt. Preston C. Stanton, arrived from Corvallis, Pa., in time to help award the prizes.

Valuable prizes will be presented at each of the sessions beginning each day at 9 a. m. through Friday and the culinary treats made during the demonstrations will also be awarded.

Calls Indian Ocean, Near East Keys To Free World's Destiny

ever to conquer the British Isles—the main hindrance to organization of the Nazi New Order in Europe—he must have greater sources of supply under his control than is now the case.

"But this Russian drive will be only part of the German offensive," Irwin warned. "Note that Gen. Erwin Rommel is holding his own in North Africa. You can look for a strong attempt there to take the Nile valley and the Suez canal. Rommel's strategy will be to draw as many United Nations troops as possible away from the Near East into North Africa. It is then that Hitler will make his real thrust through Turkey. His objectives will be three—to attack the Russians from south of the Caucasus mountains, to get control of the oil in Iran and Iraq and to reach the Persian gulf.

"Should Hitler succeed in this he will have realized the old Pan-German threat of Berlin-to-Bagdad. At the Persian gulf he will be on the Indian ocean, in a position to receive from Japan the surplus of vital raw materials that Japan now controls in her newly conquered Asiatic areas. And the Japanese merchant marine, the third largest in the world, will be put to work giving Hitler the supplies he needs to carry on the war indefinitely.

"Once the Axis actually joins hands, an effective counter-blockade has been set up on the Eurasian continent," Irwin continued. "Russia will be isolated. China will be cut off and put under pressure by Japan to sign a separate peace. India will be lost. If the Axis can develop the power potential of that great land area—four times that of the North American continent—the war is lost.

"Against this historic threat, however, we see first of all an awakening of the offensive mentality in the United States. The importance of this should not be underestimated. You can have all the war material you need, it will be of no consequence if you do not have the offensive spirit to use it."

Pointing out that France fell largely because it suffered from a defense mentality and that it took Britain many months to lose its complex of fighting the enemy by waiting for him to break down, Irwin pointed out that the United States had plans afoot to circumvent the Axis aims. One is the construction of the trans-Canadian highway to Alaska, East Cape, Siberia, and down to Irkutsk with an extension going to Chungking, China, over which both nations could be supplied with war goods. Another is the trans-African highway from Brazzaville, French Equatorial Africa, to Khartum which will make it unnecessary to depend so heavily on the Japanese-threatened sea lanes around the Cape of Good Hope.

"The destiny of the United States is involved in the Near East and the Indian ocean because if we permit the Axis to form its counter-blockade the war will last many years," Irwin said. "If we prevent this we can win by 1945, but reducing first Germany and then concentrating against Japan.

"Germany, we must not forget, is the main enemy. We cannot win the war in the Pacific, but we can lose it there if we scatter our manpower and material resources and try to do more than hold strategic points."

When the last gun is fired in this conflict, the speaker said, a new world will not arise from the ashes of war as some people think. All that free men will have will be an opportunity—an opportunity to correct the mistakes of the past and to endeavor to build something better.

"But this opportunity will be lost unless the United States keeps the offensive in peace as it is taking it in war. We cannot escape from the world. Pearl Harbor showed us that tragically. We must, from a very selfish point of view, accept our responsibilities as a world power so we do not commit a crime against mankind and against ourselves"

C. H. Henkel was chairman of the meeting and introduced the speaker.

bay laid down an intense counter-fire on Japanese mainland emplacements.

For the fourth consecutive day there were no reports of aerial attacks on Corregidor, the rock over which Wainwright's accurate anti-aircraft gunners have taken a high toll of Japanese planes.

The communique devoted three short paragraphs to the Philippine theater and went on to disclose that two Netherlands forces "of considerable size" are continuing to fight the Japanese in the interior jungles and mountains of Java.

The Dutch forces, one under General Schilling and another under General Pressman, are well supplied with food and munitions and "are engaging a considerable force of the enemy," the communique said.

This news of continued fighting on Japanese-occupied Java came from Australia where Dr. Hubertus Van Mook, acting head of the Netherlands Indies government, conferred with Gen. Douglas MacArthur today.

The two men, according to the communique, discussed at length the "considerable part" which Dutch forces are expected to play as the war continues in the southwestern Pacific.

There was no effort, meanwhile, to conceal the fact that Wainwright's battle-scarred forces on Batan face the hardest tests since the war started four months ago.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, April 8.
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A day of almost revolutionary and amazing adventures or experiences is predicted from the ruling planetary influences. While these strange and thrilling circumstances may be the crises of a sudden and decisive swing from static, crystallized and unproductive matters, it may require sound judgment, tact, tenacity and acumen to profitably react to unforeseen and peculiar situations and emotional surprise. There may be gifts, inheritance, property or other lucrative benefits to be rescued from strange or bewildering phases. The young and romantic need wise counsel.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very sudden and perhaps sensational and dramatic turn of events during the year. Radical astral influences may bring about a complete change in affairs from the stagnant and crystallized to the thrilling, adventurous, progressive and romantic. This being swept off the feet by an unpredictable turn of the wheel of destiny has its hazards, however, and must be met with poise and good sense.

A child born on this day should have excellent traits and talents, which might lift it to the heights of accomplishment and renown.

gressmen, and also the Tafts, Burtons and Brickers, from their outrageous slumber," he said.

"And judging from their official actions now, some of their visions are not yet clear as to the tremendous job ahead for all Americans."

(Besides Bricker, he referred to Republican U. S. Senators Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati and Harold H. Burton of Cleveland.)

In Ferguson's direct attack on Bricker, he said:

"Unfortunately for the people of Ohio, our governor thinks that all that is necessary to secure an adequate defense program is for him to pose in a movie film in his office to be exhibited in the theaters of Ohio, or to make an inspection tour of the defense manufacturing plants where he detracts the attention of workmen from their defense duties."

Ferguson asserted that Bricker let Ohio's home defense activity slump so badly that James M. Landis, national civilian defense director, had to go to Cleveland last week and "publicly criticize Ohio's lackadaisical attitude."

Bricker, who is seeking re-election to a third term, also was assailed for not calling a special legislature to provide state money for home defense work.

Ferguson also charged:

That state highways were in bad condition because Bricker fired thousands of skilled Democratic workmen; that Republican claims of a $13,000,000 surplus were fantastic; that Bricker deceived old age pensioners by promising them a maximum of $40 monthly and then providing that to only a few.

Ferguson, who holds the only four-year elective state position, still would have two years as auditor should he lose his bid for the governorship. He was re-elected in 1940 to the $6500-a-year post.

Mansfield Responds To War's Call

YESTERDAY'S observance of Army day in Mansfield, featured by an evening parade which reflected every phase of this community's military and civilian participation and interest in the national war effort, served as convincing evidence of Mansfield and Richland county's awareness to the reality of war and the need for individual and group participation in all activities intended to promote unity of thought and purpose.

Transition of peace-loving people to the changed thinking demanded by war is not an easy process and it is the speed, rather than the slowness, with which this has come about, that provides an amazing example of the ability of Americans to adapt themselves to whatever conditions arise.

There was unreadiness for war because people in the United States had keyed their thinking to a program of peace and because unwarranted confidence was felt in representations of nations which forced this country into war.

This resulted in the same sort of weakness at the start which Great Britain's like thinking brought during the early stages of attack against that country, and which also made possible the apparent success of Hitler's first unexpected thrust into Russia and of Japan's early aggressive moves against unprepared China.

Not until the Japanese assault on Pearl Harbor, last December 7, did America, as a nation of 130,000,000 people, awaken to the actual danger of involvement in a war that until then had seemed quite remote.

Now, however, there is clear understanding on the part of every thinking citizen that this nation is engaged in a life and death struggle for preservation of human freedom within its own bounds, and realization that no sacrifices are too great if they will contribute, in even a small way, to bring victory.

All that is asked is assurance of sound, intelligent, capable leadership; fair and impartial treatment of everyone; no special benefits in profits or wages to any favored individuals or groups, and no playing of partisan politics "for the duration."

Those who are called to military service have the right to expect the full support and unselfish aid of all who have opportunity to serve on the home front. Last evening's demonstration leads to belief that this can be depended on in the Mansfield area.

Illiteracy Is Not Stupidity

EDUCATION and intelligence are not necessarily the same thing. When it is said that a person is "illiterate" it is not meant that he is stupid.

Take India, for example. Out of its 400 million people, nearly eleven-twelfths are illiterate. They have never had a chance to be otherwise. Many of them are none the less clever. A recent traveler in India tells of seeing an illiterate native friend, sitting on a doorstep, apparently without a thing in the world to do. Accused of doing nothing, he said, "I am figuring out my profits to the thirty-second part of a penny." His brain was adequate for this complicated calculation. And elaborate and beautiful works of art, such as rugs, have been done all over Asia by craftsmen who could not read and write.

As this traveler mentions, many of the great sages of Asia have been illiterate. Mohammed, the founder of a great religion, could neither read nor write, yet he changed the history of the world.

Taros or Dasheens, As You Prefer

HOW WILL you have your dasheens? Boiled, mashed or home fried? In Florida they would know what you were talking about, but probably not elsewhere in the country.

The dasheen is the new rival to the potato, and has for some time been known to travellers abroad as the taro. Common in the Pacific islands, the Mediterranean countries and parts of Latin America, it is especially common in Hawaii, where they have no less than 69 varieties. Now the department of agriculture is encouraging its development, partly, no doubt, in case there should be a potato shortage. But it is supposed to be an improvement, being nourishing, economical and less starchy than the white potato. Also, from two to four times as many taros as potatoes will grow on the same amount of soil.

The taro has one recommendation that will go over big with army K. P.'s—it doesn't have to be peeled.

Ambitious Highway Project

NEW YORK STATE is planning a 300-mile rival to Pennsylvania's famous turnpike, to be built "after the war." It will be a divided highway on a 200-foot right of way, from New York City up the Hudson and then west, following in a general way the route of the New York Central railroad. It is hoped to connect it with similar projects further west.

Under a peacetime program American roads will become better and better. Roads like the Pennsylvania turnpike and this new one would, in certain states, be invaluable in war-time. Germany owes much of her speed in troop movements to an abundance of wide, well-planned roads.

More Chinese Originality

THE CHINESE seem to have thought of everything first: the compass, gun-powder, printing. Now it is taxicabs. Arthur C. Moule, an English writer, has found that 1,000 years ago the gifted Chinese had invented a carriage with a dummy figure in the rear seat. With every revolution of the wheel this figure would strike a bell with a hammer, and thus record the progress of the carriage.

The real wonder is not merely that the Chinese had taxicabs, but that they seem also to have invented Charlie McCarthy.

"We accepted this war; we did not begin it. We accepted it for an object, and when that object is accomplished the war will end, and I hope to God it will never end until that object is accomplished."—Abraham Lincoln.

Hollywood is making ready a picture of a hospital operation—with prospects that the patient can witness his opening.

A hog-calling champ out west complains that he never made a cent out of it—and he's lucky to have come out even.

Of course those camps for conscientious objectors will have to be protected against enemy bombs.

TIME TO GET OUR OWN GARDEN IN

It's Time To 'Get Fighting Mad'

(Editor's Note: Occasionally, out of the great flood of opinions being expressed about the war, and about what America should do, there comes a clear-cut statement which reflects the views of many people. Such is the case in the following article by W. J. Weir, copy director for a large advertising agency, re-printed from a recent issue of Printers' Ink and submitted for thoughtful consideration by News-Journal readers.)

DON'T get me wrong—I'm just an ordinary guy. I'm not trying to pose as an expert on the moulding of public opinion. I'm not talking big about what I'd do if it was my job to whip up the country on the war effort.

I'm talking as an average citizen. I'm saying, not what I'd like to tell them, but what I'd like to be told. Soon.

Because I'm concerned, and I've been concerned, about my reaction to all that's been happening. Sure, I'm buying bonds. I'm paying taxes. I'm doing with less sugar.

But deep down inside, down where it really matters, something hasn't taken place yet that I feel ought to take place. I'm all a welter of confusion there. It keeps me scratching my head and mopping my brow when I know I ought to be clenching my fists.

You understand? It's like this: I want to be told—not to buy Defense Stamps or Defense Bonds. I want to be told to buy Victory Stamps or War Bonds.

I want to be told—not about the construction of houses in Defense Areas. I want to be told about the construction of houses in War Production Areas.

I want to be told—not to remember Pearl Harbor. I want to be told to take Tokyo, to bomb Berlin, to raze Rome.

I want to be told—not to do my part in keeping Naziism or Fascism from these shores. I want to be told to do my part to spread Americanism to all shores.

I want to be told—not to help keep our world and our way of life from being lost. I want to be told to help build a new world and a better way of life.

I want a positive program instead of a passive one. I want something to fight for—I'm sick and tired of having only something to fight against. I'm hungry for something to get pepped up about—I'm repelled from having only something to fear. I want something to do—not just to wait for.

It hasn't been so long since the last war that I forget what happened then. I remember the parades and the speeches and the ringing slogans. Then we fought to make the world safe for democracy. We bought Liberty Bonds. We sang that the Yanks were coming.

We set out to avenge Belgium—not just to remember it. We made a vow that we'd reach Berlin or bust. We toyed with plans to hang the Kaiser. We warned the Hun to "keep your head down, Fritzie-boy!" We girded ourselves for a Crusade—we didn't close the doors for a siege.

We hated the Kaiser—we didn't laugh at him. We printed his loathsome physiognomy on toilet paper—to make the most ignominious use of it. We likened his upturned handle-bars to the devil's horns—not to anything so harmless and pathetic as the famous hirsute prop Charlie Chaplin plasters on his upper lip. We saw nothing to be amused about in his vain and pompous posturings—as we do today in Mussolini's puffy strutting. We didn't pin our hopes on the defective eyesight of our enemy.

We planted war gardens. We poured money into war chests. We had gasless Sundays and yelled "Slacker!" at anyone who dared to venture out in his Winton or Hupmobile of Sterns-Knight. We churned one pound of butter into two pounds and did it with as much will as if we were turning out ammunition.

We took the offensive psychologically long before we took it physically. And if we hadn't taken it psychologically, we'd never have developed the drive to take it physically. And don't tell me we can't do the same now.

I want to sing that today we control our own destiny, tomorrow the destiny of the whole world. I want to sail against Germany, against Italy, against Japan. If they can sail against us and our allies, why can't we sail against them?

I want to construct a greater America co-prosperity sphere. I want to correct the mistakes of the Versailles treaty insofar as they allowed all this to happen. I want to win lebensraum for the democratic way of life.

I'm fed up with singing plaintive songs—I want to sing battle songs. Don't tell me there'll be bluebirds over the white cliffs of Dover. To hell with bluebirds. Tell me there'll be vultures and a deathly silence over Berchtesgaden.

I'm bored with keeping a stiff upper lip—I want to develop a stiff uppercut. I'm tired of being made to feel sad. I want the experience—the purging, marshaling, driving experience—of being made to feel mad. Fighting mad!

You get me!

Timely Editorial

Exemption For College.

In this era of rising taxes, nobody expects any kind of tax relief, but oddly enough, the treasury department in the person of Randolph Paul has suggested to the house ways and means committee that the income tax law be liberalized slightly in several particulars. At least three of those proposed changes appear to be sensible and fair. One is a small credit to be allowed the widowed mother who works, the credit to offset the cost of care for the children. Another is a credit for "extraordinary medical expenses." A third is exemption for children between the ages of 18 and 21 who are attending college.

Every father knows that children are just beginning to be expensive when they reach the age of 18 and cease to entitle him to that $400 annual deduction. The income tax law must have been framed by congressmen who didn't approve of college education. We trust that the present congress, most of whose members hold college degrees, will take a more broadminded view.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"Three on a Match."

Where there are matches, there is sure to be the superstition that it's unlucky to light three cigarets on one lucifer.

Fostered by the manufacturers of these tiny sticks, this superstition attained a vogue during the first World war.

The reason, so the story goes, being the fact that in the trenches soldiers constantly were cautioned not to hold a flaming match longer than it took to light just one or two cigarets, lest it give the enemy enough time to take good aim and fire.

Another explanation, however, antedates this event, the superstition being attributed to the alleged ritual of the Russian church, at a funeral service, of lighting three altar candles with one taper.

Any extension of the practice of lighting a group of three objects from one source came to be regarded not only as sacrilegious, but certain to bring misfortune upon the donor as well as the receiver of the third light.

Probing Inefficiency and Waste In Shipbuilding for Government

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—That shipbuilders are making enormous war profits is not news. Much sensational evidence on this has been revealed by several congressional committees.

But what is news is the fact that despite these huge profits—gross inefficiency, waste and even worse are rampant in many shipyards.

In fact so serious has the situation become that ship production has been gravely affected, and the justice department and Truman committee have begun quiet probes preliminary to drastic crack-downs.

Evidence already in the hands of investigators show that the worst offenders are the old, established companies, who have been given the bulk of the contracts by the Maritime commission on the ground that they had the "know-how" to build ships fast and in large numbers. Actually, production records tell a different story.

The most efficient yards are the new ones, in many cases erected and operated by men without any previous shipbuilding experience.

For example: The ace plant in the country is the Portland (Ore.) Shipyard, one of the Henry Kaiser properties. Builder of Boulder Dam and other giant projects, Kaiser had never made a ship until, as a war measure, he got into the business last year. Today he has a number of West Coast yards which are turning out ships by the most advanced and efficient methods on a continuous 24-hour, seven-day operational basis.

The best of these yards is the Portland plant, managed by his son Edgar. He had never built a ship before and only three of his executives had previous shipbuilding experience. Also only a fraction of the thousands of workers in the yard are shipbuilders.

In contrast, is the Bethlehem Shipbuilding company, one of the largest and oldest in the country, which investigators report doesn't even begin to approach the Kaiser yards in efficiency.

Bethlehem is described as being the "biggest obstacle" to a three-shift system. It has vigorously resisted this on the ground that it is impossible to obtain enough trained supervisors. Bethlehem insists on two ten-hour shifts, which means a loss of four production hours a day.

Kaiser's and other three-shift yards have had no trouble training all the foremen they needed. Why giant Bethlehem is unable to do so is a mystery—which the Maritime commission, that has so lavishly favored the corporation, has not deemed necessary to do anything about.

DIE-HARD stubbornness and inefficiency are only one part of the sour shipbuilding picture. The investigators have come across the trail of other things that emit an odor.

Among the charges they are probing are—

1. That repairs on a Russian ship, sent over for a cargo of urgently needed war supplies, were "deliberately" stalled in one yard for weeks. According to information given investigators, the repairs ordinarily could have been completed in a week. Instead the job took more than a month as a result of "deliberate" delays caused by a constant shifting of workers, assigning workers without tools, withholding materials, and other dilatory tactics.

2. That scores of workers drawing high pay are constantly standing around idle at another drydock because of lack of efficient production methods. Also that "overcrowding and overloading" of ships is a common occurrence at this plant.

3. That more than 50 high-pay craftsmen at a third plant worked from six weeks to four months on the private homes and farms of certain company executives and that their pay was charged to the government. Also that large quantities of shipbuilding material—3,000 feet of cable, copper tubing, paint, electrical and plumbing equipment—paid for by the government, went into this private work. Also that a landscape gardener engaged in this work received a $1,700 company check.

Capital Chaff.

WHEN ex-Governor Max Gardner of North Carolina was married 35 years ago, the negroes of Shelby, N. C., contributed ten cents each, raised $20 and bought the newlyweds a rocking chair. Last week, 35 years later, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner deeded 28 acres of valuable real estate to the negroes of Shelby for a cemetery and public park....Senatorial colleagues pay tribute to the painstaking, night-and-day study of war labor problems which Senator Maybank of South Carolina is making as a member of the senate appropriations committee... The resignation of Ray Edmundson, Illinois head of the United Mine Workers, as State CIO Director, drew a big laugh in labor circles. A henchman of John L. Lewis, Edmundson was stripped of his CIO powers several months ago when he fired an anti-Lewis official, and Illinois CIO leaders promptly gave him another job. Edmundson was one of the few CIO leaders who followed Lewis in his bolt to Willkie in 1940.

Priests Wanted.

WANTED — American Catholic priests and nuns who can speak French, for service in the friendly Republic of Haiti.

A dangerous situation has developed in Haiti, whose people are influenced by French priests trying to undermine Haitian loyalty to the United States.

That loyalty is most important, for Haiti guards one entrance to the Caribbean and Panama.

Haitian President Elie Lescot is an ardent friend of the United States, and though the memory of U. S. marines still rankles in Haiti, it was one of the first Latin-American countries to declare war on Japan after Pearl Harbor. Haiti also declared war on Germany and Italy even before the United States.

But President Lescot's influence is being thwarted by anti-American influence exerted through French priests in the churches and schools of Haiti. So the state department is co-operating with President Lescot in getting Catholic clergy from the U. S. A.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — A cheer for the American University's public relations department and Prof. W. D. Boutwell. They have placed on the president's desk a ripping ten-point indictment of the writing in government communications. It is the result of five years' study by the department under direction of Boutwell and B. P. Brodinsky.

The worst fault of all, says the report, is that sentences in government pronouncements are too long. They average from 65 to 80 words. In good government writing (the Office of Facts and Figures "Report to the Nation" and the president's own speeches are cited) length of sentences is 15 to 18 words.

The next worst fault is "too much hedging; too many modifications and conditional clauses and phrases." Ah, there is the fine hand of the potitician and bureaucrat—the fellow who always wants to leave a loophole, just in case.

NEXT come the weak, ineffective verbs: "'Point out,' 'indicate' and 'reveal' are the weak reeds on which many a government sentence leans."

Too many sentences begin the same way, especially with "the." At that point, the authors tossed off a nifty: "A sentence beginning with 'the' is like a day beginning with a fog." To prove it, they cited an abstruse paragraph of five sentences, four beginning with "the." Other faults included use of passive tenses and indirect phrases in the attempt to be impersonal; overabundance of abstract nouns; superabundance of prepositional phrases; too many expletives from the school of paragraphers who start each with "it is" or "there are."

"Federalese"—the government's shop talk—was scored as often obscure to the layman. Finally, the investigators found the too frequent tendency to make ideas rather than people and things the heroes of government sentences.

THE indictment was timely. More government pronouncements, reports, memos, communiques, press releases and such are being ground out now than ever before.

Boutwell says: "Constant communication between the government and its citizens—most of which must be by the written word—is essential to our way of life. If channels of communication are bogged down in verbiage, the people are not only confused but begin to lose touch with their government."

To which the president probably said: "And how," for it was the president himself in a press conference the other day who edited an obscure polysyllabic letter of blackout instructions from OCD Director James M. Landis. It included such phrases as "terminate the illumination."

The president explained that Dean Landis' Harvardese really meant turn out the lights.

Late Snow

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

LAST WEEK a heavy snow storm blew from the southwest. At dusk the soft flakes had covered the green meadow grass and new-plowed fields. It roared heavily all night long—by dawn of the following day, when I moved with difficulty toward the barn, the snow was eight inches deep.

The east gable of the red painted boards were bedabbled with swirls, like stars. The rose vines above the spring, the small wild cherry tree and the graceful maples were burdened until their branches trailed with the load, or shook off great blobs of white wherever the wind struck them. Wheat fields and pastures, green the night before, had changed to vast expanses of snowy waste. The air was damply chill, so that winter clothing did not seem warm enough.

On the cottage roof, snow slipped and curled about the eaves, to tumble later in small avalanches. On my trip into town, cars slipped and spun—I saw three landed skewily in the ditches. On the steeper hills long lines of laden trucks and cars were stalled. With relief I learned that our local school buses would not attempt to run—because of the unsafe condition of narrow back roads.

With it all, the snow was so beautiful that I heard many exclamations of delight, wherever human beings congregated. Only to the bird life of the woods and fields, came harrowing tragedy.

I walked along my neighbor's old worm fence, and heard a movement near my feet. I waited. A broad half-open beak thrust above the whited surface. I reached low with my hand and brought out the bedraggled form of a meadowlark. She shivered, and seemed so weak that she could not stand on her slender legs. Then, with wide gaping mouth, she uttered a short, quivering note and fell fluttering to the snow. A few moments more and she lay lifeless. Many larks, better sheltered in more secluded places, no doubt survived the storm.

I saw where two families of quail had huddled in this same meadow. The moist covering of snow must have smothered them, for of the two bevies, I counted a dozen lying stiffly cold among the clumps of meadow grass.

Down by the border of the thicket, though, even when snow was still falling, I heard a cock pheasant's lusty crow—the only encouraging cheery note of the entire day. Perhaps the expectant mother pheasants had safer sleeping quarters than the quails the snow had trapped.

A light rain which started soon after the parade got underway failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the paraders.

Bands taking part in the celebration included the North Robinson, Mt. Zion, Leesville and Bucyrus high school units.

Many merchants and civic groups entered floats and special cars were provided to carry gold and blue star mothers. Other units included ambulances carrying Red Cross workers and nurses enrolled in the civilian defense corp, city fire trucks and a state highway patrol escort. Hertzer, civilian defense commander, who explained the various functions and requirements of the groups operating under civilian defense. Insignia of the classifications were displayed and training requirements explained.

Randall Motts, Bucyrus high school teacher, presented a lecture on gas warfare and incendiary bombs and gave a demonstration of several of the gases and incendiary materials used by the warring nations.

Other discussion leaders for the remainder of the course will include C. C. Richard, who will explain the central control unit; George Dustman, air warden's division; J. W. Jones, blackout tactics; Police Chief Arthur L. Stuckert, auxiliary police units; Fire Chief W. F. Mader, auxiliary fire unit; Fred Judd, decontamination work and Dr. W. G. # COUNCIL TURNS DOWN 'SANDBAG' GAS PROPOSAL

Legislators at Shelby Fail to Take Action on Gas Company's Offer.

SHELBY—City council turned down without a recorded vote a proposed "sandbag" gas rate ordinance offered by the Ohio Fuel Gas company Monday night which would have meant an increase in gas rates here over the present schedule.

The ordinance offered by the gas company set up the same rates that are in effect here for the first year, then the rates jumped for the next three years, and still higher for the final year of the five-year contract.

Rates for the first year of the proposed contract were: 20 cents per 100 cubic feet for first 500; 5.5 cents per 100 for next 9,500 cubic feet and 5 cents per 100 cubic feet for all in excess of 10,000 cubic feet.

The schedule for the next three years would be: 20 cents per cubic feet, 6 cents per 100 cubic feet for next 1,500, 5.5 cents per 100 cubic feet for next 98,000 and 5 cents per 100 cubic feet for all in excess of 100,000.

The final year rates in the contract were: 20 cents per 100 cubic feet for first 500, 6 cents per 100 cubic feet for next 4,500, 5.5 cents per 100 cubic feet for next 95,000 and 5 cents per 100 cubic feet for all in excess of 100,000.

While the average 5,000-foot consumer is paying 69 cents a thousand cubic feet of gas, he would pay 71 cents per thousand the second, third and fourth years of the proposed contract and 74 cents a thousand during the final year.

Council members said that they did not want a "sandbag" gas rate which sets one schedule for part of the contract and then raises the rates during the contract making the final year the highest. Members also pointed out that they believe a five-year contract is too long a length of time for an ordinance to run under war conditions.

Council instructed Mayor Morris to return the contract to gas officials and tell them if that was the only rate schedule they had available for Shelby that it would have to be sent through the state utilities commission as the council would not agree to such a schedule.

Councilmen agreed at a recent meeting that they would accept a renewal of the present rates which have been in effect here under a three-year contract that expired last year. The present rates continue in effect until a new contract is passed by the council.

The present rates are: 20 cents per 100 cubic feet for first 500, 5.5 cents per 100 cubic feet for 9,500 and 5 cents per 100 cubic feet for all in excess of 10,000.

Mansfield Responds To War's Call

YESTERDAY'S observance of Army day in Mansfield, featured by an evening parade which reflected every phase of this community's military and civilian participation and interest in the national war effort, served as convincing evidence of Mansfield and Richland county's awareness to the reality of war and the need for individual and group participation in all activities intended to promote unity of thought and purpose.

Transition of peace-loving people to the changed thinking demanded by war is not an easy process and it is the speed, rather than the slowness, with which this has come about, that provides an amazing example of the ability of Americans to adapt themselves to whatever conditions arise.

There was unreadiness for war because people in the United States had keyed their thinking to a program of peace and because unwarranted confidence was felt in representations of nations which forced this country into war.

This resulted in the same sort of weakness at the start which Great Britain's like thinking brought during the early stages of attack against that country, and which also made possible the apparent success of Hitler's first unexpected thrust into Russia and of Japan's early aggressive moves against unprepared China.

Not until the Japanese assault on Pearl Harbor, last December 7, did America, as a nation of 130,000,000 people, awaken to the actual danger of involvement in a war that until then had seemed quite remote.

Now, however, there is clear understanding on the part of every thinking citizen that this nation is engaged in a life and death struggle for preservation of human freedom within its own bounds, and realization that no sacrifices are too great if they will contribute, in even a small way, to bring victory.

All that is asked is assurance of sound, intelligent, capable leadership; fair and impartial treatment of everyone; no special benefits in profits or wages to any favored individuals or groups, and no playing of partisan politics "for the duration."

Those who are called to military service have the right to expect the full support and unselfish aid of all who have opportunity to serve on the home front. Last evening's demonstration leads to belief that this can be depended on in the Mansfield area.

Illiteracy Is Not Stupidity

EDUCATION and intelligence are not necessarily the same thing. When it is said that a person is "illiterate" it is not meant that he is stupid.

Take India, for example. Out of its 400 million people, nearly eleven-twelfths are illiterate. They have never had a chance to be otherwise. Many of them are none the less clever. A recent traveler in India tells of seeing an illiterate native friend, sitting on a doorstep, apparently without a thing in the world to do. Accused of doing nothing, he said, "I am figuring out my profits to the thirty-second part of a penny." His brain was adequate for this complicated calculation. And elaborate and beautiful works of art, such as rugs, have been done all over Asia by craftsmen who could not read and write.

As this traveler mentions, many of the great sages of Asia have been illiterate. Mohammed, the founder of a great religion, could neither read nor write, yet he changed the history of the world.

Taros or Dasheens, As You Prefer

HOW WILL you have your dasheens? Boiled, mashed or home fried? In Florida they would know what you were talking about, but probably not elsewhere in the country.

The dasheen is the new rival to the potato, and has for some time been known to travellers abroad as the taro. Common in the Pacific islands, the Mediterranean countries and parts of Latin America, it is especially common in Hawaii, where they have no less than 69 varieties. Now the department of agriculture is encouraging its development, partly, no doubt, in case there should be a potato shortage. But it is supposed to be an improvement, being nourishing, economical and less starchy than the white potato. Also, from two to four times as many taros as potatoes will grow on the same amount of soil.

The taro has one recommendation that will go over big with army K. P.'s—it doesn't have to be peeled.

Ambitious Highway Project

NEW YORK STATE is planning a 300-mile rival to Pennsylvania's famous turnpike, to be built "after the war." It will be a divided highway on a 200-foot right of way, from New York City up the Hudson and then west, following in a general way the route of the New York Central railroad. It is hoped to connect it with similar projects further west.

Under a peacetime program American roads will become better and better. Roads like the Pennsylvania turnpike and this new one would, in certain states, be invaluable in war-time. Germany owes much of her speed in troop movements to an abundance of wide, well-planned roads.

More Chinese Originality

THE CHINESE seem to have thought of everything first: the compass, gun-powder, printing. Now it is taxicabs. Arthur C. Moule, an English writer, has found that 1,000 years ago the gifted Chinese had invented a carriage with a dummy figure in the rear seat. With every revolution of the wheel this figure would strike a bell with a hammer, and thus record the progress of the carriage.

The real wonder is not merely that the Chinese had taxicabs, but that they seem also to have invented Charlie McCarthy.

"We accepted this war; we did not begin it. We accepted it for an object, and when that object is accomplished the war will end, and I hope to God it will never end until that object is accomplished."—Abraham Lincoln.

Hollywood is making ready a picture of a hospital operation—with prospects that the patient can witness his opening.

Of course those camps for conscientious objectors will have to be protected against enemy bombs.

TIME TO GET OUR OWN GARDEN IN

It's Time To 'Get Fighting Mad'

(Editor's Note: Occasionally, out of the great flood of opinions being expressed about the war, and about what America should do, there comes a clear-cut statement which reflects the views of many people. Such is the case in the following article by W. J. Weir, copy director for a large advertising agency, re-printed from a recent issue of Printers' Ink and submitted for thoughtful consideration by News-Journal readers.)

DON'T get me wrong—I'm just an ordinary guy. I'm not trying to pose as an expert on the moulding of public opinion. I'm not talking big about what I'd do if it was my job to whip up the country on the war effort.

I'm talking as an average citizen. I'm saying, not what I'd like to tell them, but what I'd like to be told. Soon.

Because I'm concerned, and I've been concerned, about my reaction to all that's been happening. Sure, I'm buying bonds. I'm paying taxes. I'm doing with less sugar.

But deep down inside, down where it really matters, something hasn't taken place yet that I feel ought to take place. I'm all a welter of confusion there. It keeps me scratching my head and mopping my brow when I know I ought to be clenching my fists.

You understand? It's like this:

I want to be told—not to buy Defense Stamps or Defense Bonds. I want to be told to buy Victory Stamps or War Bonds.

I want to be told—not about the construction of houses in Defense Areas. I want to be told about the construction of houses in War Production Areas.

I want to be told—not to remember Pearl Harbor. I want to be told to take Tokyo, to bomb Berlin, to raze Rome.

I want to be told—not to do my part in keeping Naziism or Fascism from these shores. I want to be told to do my part to spread Americanism to all shores.

I want to be told—not to help keep our world and our way of life from being lost. I want to be told to help build a new world and a better way of life.

I want a positive program instead of a passive one. I want something to fight for—I'm sick and tired of having only something to fight against. I'm hungry for something to get pepped up about—I'm repelled from having only something to fear. I want something to do—not just to wait for.

It hasn't been so long since the last war that I forget what happened then. I remember the parades and the speeches and the ringing slogans. Then we fought to make the world safe for democracy. We bought Liberty Bonds. We sang that the Yanks were coming.

We set out to avenge Belgium—not just to remember it. We made a vow that we'd reach Berlin or bust. We toyed with plans to hang the Kaiser. We warned the Hun to "keep your head down, Fritzie-boy!" We girded ourselves for a Crusade—we didn't close the doors for a siege.

We hated the Kaiser—we didn't laugh at him. We printed his loathsome physiognomy on toilet paper—to make the most ignominious use of it. We likened his upturned handle-bars to the devil's horns—not to anything so harmless and pathetic as the famous hirsute prop Charlie Chaplin plasters on his upper lip. We saw nothing to be amused about in his vain and pompous posturings—as we do today in Mussolini's puffy strutting. We didn't pin our hopes on the defective eyesight of our enemy.

We planted war gardens. We poured money into war chests. We had gasless Sundays and yelled "Slacker!" at anyone who dared to venture out in his Winton or Hupmobile of Sterns-Knight. We churned one pound of butter into two pounds and did it with as much will as if we were turning out ammunition.

We took the offensive psychologically long before we took it physically. And if we hadn't taken it psychologically, we'd never have developed the drive to take it physically. And don't tell me we can't do the same now.

I want to sing that today we control our own destiny, tomorrow the destiny of the whole world. I want to sail against Germany, against Italy, against Japan. If they can sail against us and our allies, why can't we sail against them?

I want to construct a greater America co-prosperity sphere. I want to correct the mistakes of the Versailles treaty insofar as they allowed all this to happen. I want to win lebensraum for the democratic way of life.

I'm fed up with singing plaintive songs—I want to sing battle songs. Don't tell me there'll be bluebirds over the white cliffs of Dover. To hell with bluebirds. Tell me there'll be vultures and a deathly silence over Berchtesgaden.

I'm bored with keeping a stiff upper lip—I want to develop a stiff uppercut. I'm tired of being made to feel sad. I want the experience—the purging, marshaling, driving experience—of being made to feel mad. Fighting mad!

You get me!

Timely Editorial

Exemption For College.

In this era of rising taxes, nobody expects any kind of tax relief, but oddly enough, the treasury department in the person of Randolph Paul has suggested to the house ways and means committee that the income tax law be liberalized slightly in several particulars. At least three of those proposed changes appear to be sensible and fair. One is a small credit to be allowed the widowed mother who works, the credit to offset the cost of care for the children. Another is a credit for "extraordinary medical expenses." A third is exemption for children between the ages of 18 and 21 who are attending college.

Every father knows that children are just beginning to be expensive when they reach the age of 18 and cease to entitle him to that $400 annual deduction. The income tax law must have been framed by congressmen who didn't approve of college education. We trust that the present congress, most of whose members hold college degrees, will take a more broadminded view.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"Three on a Match."

Where there are matches, there is sure to be the superstition that it's unlucky to light three cigarets on one lucifer.

Fostered by the manufacturers of these tiny sticks, this superstition attained a vogue during the first World war.

The reason so the story goes, being the fact that in the trenches soldiers constantly were cautioned not to hold a flaming match longer than it took to light just one or two cigarets, lest it give the enemy enough time to take good aim and fire.

Another explanation, however, antedates this event, the superstition being attributed to the alleged ritual of the Russian church, at a funeral service, of lighting three altar candles with one taper.

Any extension of the practice of lighting a group of three objects from one source came to be regarded not only as sacrilegious, but certain to bring misfortune upon the donor as well as the receiver of the third light.

Probing Inefficiency and Waste In Shipbuilding for Government

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—That shipbuilders are making enormous war profits is not news. Much sensational evidence on this has been revealed by several congressional committees.

But what is news is the fact that despite these huge profits—gross inefficiency, waste and even worse are rampant in many shipyards.

In fact so serious has the situation become that ship production has been gravely affected, and the justice department and Truman committee have begun quiet probes preliminary to drastic crack-downs.

Evidence already in the hands of investigators show that the worst offenders are the old, established companies, who have been given the bulk of the contracts by the Maritime commission on the ground that they had the "know-how" to build ships fast and in large numbers. Actually, production records tell a different story.

The most efficient yards are the new ones, in many cases erected and operated by men without any previous shipbuilding experience.

For example: The ace plant in the country is the Portland (Ore.) Shipyard, one of the Henry Kaiser properties. Builder of Boulder Dam and other giant projects, Kaiser had never made a ship until, as a war measure, he got into the business last year. Today he has a number of West Coast yards which are turning out ships by the most advanced and efficient methods on a continuous 24-hour, seven-day operational basis.

The best of these yards is the Portland plant, managed by his son Edgar. He had never built a ship before and only three of his executives had previous shipbuilding experience. Also only a fraction of the thousands of workers in the yard are shipbuilders.

In contrast, is the Bethlehem Shipbuilding company, one of the largest and oldest in the country, which investigators report doesn't even begin to approach the Kaiser yards in efficiency.

Bethlehem is described as being the "biggest obstacle" to a three-shift system. It has vigorously resisted this on the ground that it is impossible to obtain enough trained supervisors. Bethlehem insists on two ten-hour shifts, which means a loss of four production hours a day.

Kaiser's and other three-shift yards have had no trouble training all the foremen they needed. Why giant Bethlehem is unable to do so is a mystery—which the Maritime commission, that has so lavishly favored the corporation, has not deemed necessary to do anything about.

. . . and Worse.

DIE-HARD stubbornness and inefficiency are only one part of the sour shipbuilding picture. The investigators have come across the trail of other things that emit an odor.

Among the charges they are probing are—

1. That repairs on a Russian ship, sent over for a cargo of urgently needed war supplies, were "deliberately" stalled in one yard for weeks. According to information given investigators, the repairs ordinarily could have been completed in a week. Instead the job took more than a month as a result of "deliberate" delays caused by a constant shifting of workers, assigning workers without tools, withholding materials, and other dilatory tactics.

2. That scores of workers drawing high pay are constantly standing around idle at another dry-dock because of lack of efficient production methods. Also that "overcrowding and overloading" of ships is a common occurrence at this plant.

3. That more than 50 high-pay craftsmen at a third plant worked from six weeks to four months on the private homes and farms of certain company executives and that their pay was charged to the government. Also that large quantities of shipbuilding material—3,000 feet of cable, copper tubing, paint, electrical and plumbing equipment—paid for by the government, went into this private work. Also that a landscape gardener engaged in this work received a $1,700 company check.

Capital Chaff.

WHEN ex-Governor Max Gardner of North Carolina was married 35 years ago, the negroes of Shelby, N. C., contributed ten cents each, raised $20 and bought the newlyweds a rocking chair. Last week, 35 years later, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner deeded 28 acres of valuable real estate to the negroes of Shelby for a cemetery and public park....Senatorial colleagues pay tribute to the painstaking, night-and-day study of war labor problems which Senator Maybank of South Carolina is making as a member of the senate appropriations committee... The resignation of Ray Edmundson, Illinois head of the United Mine Workers, as State CIO Director, drew a big laugh in labor circles. A henchman of John L. Lewis, Edmundson was stripped of his CIO powers several months ago when he fired an anti-Lewis official, and Illinois CIO leaders promptly gave him another job. Edmundson was one of the few CIO leaders who followed Lewis in his bolt to Willkie in 1940.

Priests Wanted.

WANTED — American Catholic priests and nuns who can speak French, for service in the friendly Republic of Haiti.

A dangerous situation has developed in Haiti, whose people are influenced by French priests trying to undermine Haitian loyalty to the United States.

That loyalty is most important, for Haiti guards one entrance to the Caribbean and Panama.

Haitian President Elie Lescot is an ardent friend of the United States, and though the memory of U. S. marines still rankles in Haiti, it was one of the first Latin-American countries to declare war on Japan after Pearl Harbor. Haiti also declared war on Germany and Italy even before the United States.

But President Lescot's influence is being thwarted by anti-American influence exerted through French priests in the churches and schools of Haiti. So the state department is co-operating with President Lescot in getting Catholic clergy from the U. S. A.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — A cheer for the American University's public relations department and Prof. W. D. Boutwell. They have placed on the president's desk a ripping ten-point indictment of the writing in government communications. It is the result of five years' of study by the department under direction of Boutwell and B. P. Brodinsky.

The worst fault of all, says the report, is that sentences in government pronouncements are too long. They average from 65 to 80 words. In good government writing (the Office of Facts and Figures "Report to the Nation" and the president's own speeches are cited) length of sentences is 15 to 18 words.

The next worst fault is "too much hedging; too many modifications and conditional clauses and phrases." Ah, there is the fine hand of the politician and bureaucrat—the fellow who always wants to leave a loophole, just in case.

NEXT come the weak, ineffective verbs: "'Point out,' 'indicate' and 'reveal' are the weak reeds on which many a government sentence leans."

Too many sentences begin the same way, especially with "the." At that point, the authors tossed off a nifty: "A sentence beginning with 'the' is like a day beginning with a fog." To prove it, they cited an abstruse paragraph of five sentences, four beginning with "the." Other faults included use of passive tenses and indirect phrases in the attempt to be impersonal; overabundance of abstract nouns; superabundance of prepositional phrases; too many expletives from the school of paragraphers who start each with "it is" or "there are."

"Federalese"—the government's shop talk—was scored as often obscure to the layman. Finally, the investigators found the too frequent tendency to make ideas rather than people and things the heroes of government sentences.

THE indictment was timely. More government pronouncements, reports, memos, communiques, press releases and such are being ground out now than ever before.

Boutwell says: "Constant communication between the government and its citizens—most of which must be by the written word—is essential to our way of life. If channels of communication are bogged down in verbiage, the people are not only confused but begin to lose touch with their government."

To which the president probably said: "And how," for it was the president himself in a press conference the other day who edited an obscure polysyllabic letter of blackout instructions from OCD Director James M. Landis. It included such phrases as "terminate the illumination."

The president explained that Dean Landis' Harvardese really meant turn out the lights.

Late Snow

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

LAST WEEK a heavy snow storm blew from the southwest. At dusk the soft flakes had covered the green meadow grass and new-plowed fields. It roared heavily all night long—by dawn of the following day, when I moved with difficulty toward the barn, the snow was eight inches deep.

The east gable of the red painted boards were bedabbled with swirls, like stars. The rose vines above the spring, the small wild cherry tree and the graceful maples were burdened until their branches trailed with the load, or shook off great blobs of white wherever the wind struck them. Wheat fields and pastures, green the night before, had changed to vast expanses of snowy waste. The air was damply chill, so that winter clothing did not seem warm enough.

On the cottage roof, snow slipped and curled about the eaves, to tumble later in small avalanches. On my trip into town, cars slipped and spun—I saw three landed skewily in the ditches. On the steeper hills long lines of laden trucks and cars were stalled. With relief I learned that our local school buses would not attempt to run—because of the unsafe condition of narrow back roads.

With it all, the snow was so beautiful that I heard many exclamations of delight, wherever human beings congregated. Only to the bird life of the woods and fields, came harrowing tragedy.

I walked along my neighbor's old worm fence, and heard a movement near my feet. I waited. A broad half-open beak thrust above the whited surface. I reached low with my hand and brought out the bedraggled form of a meadowlark. She shivered, and seemed so weak that she could not stand on her slender legs. Then, with wide gaping mouth, she uttered a short, quivering note and fell fluttering to the snow. A few moments more and she lay lifeless. Many larks, better sheltered in more secluded places, no doubt survived the storm.

I saw where two families of quail had huddled in this same meadow. The moist covering of snow must have smothered them, for of the two bevies, I counted a dozen lying stiffly cold among the clumps of meadow grass.

Down by the border of the thicket, though, even when snow was still falling, I heard a cock pheasant's lusty crow—the only encouraging cheery note of the entire day. Perhaps the expectant mother pheasants had safer sleeping quarters than the quails the snow had trapped.

1,200 MARCH IN ARMY DAY PARADE MONDAY

Rain at Bucyrus Fails To Dampen Spirit of Marchers.

BUCYRUS— Approximately 1,200 persons including four bands and various patriotic and fraternal groups took part in the Army Day parade here Monday night, after which more than 500 of those taking part in the celebration met at the high school for the first of the second series of training meetings for volunteer civilian defense workers.

A light rain which started soon after the parade got underway failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the paraders.

Bands taking part in the celebration included the North Robinson, Mt. Zion, Leesville and Bucyrus high school units.

Many merchants and civic groups entered floats and special cars were provided to carry gold and blue star mothers. Other units included ambulances carrying Red Cross workers and nurses enrolled in the civilian defense corp, city fire trucks and a state highway patrol escort. Colonel Crawford post of the American Legion made up the color guard.

Sponsors of the celebration were the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the "B" club.

Included in the program at the high school where 538 persons registered for the second series of training classes, was an outline of the course given by R L.. Hertzer, civilian defense commander, who explained the various functions and requirements of the groups operating under civilian defense. Insignia of the classifications were displayed and training requirements explained.

Randall Motts, Bucyrus high school teacher, presented a lecture on gas warfare and incendiary bombs and gave a demonstration of several of the gases and incendiary materials used by the warring nations.

Other discussion leaders for the remainder of the course will include C. C. Richard, who will explain the central control unit; George Dustman, air warden's division; J. W. Jones, blackout tactics; Police Chief Arthur L. Stuckert, auxiliary police units; Fire Chief W. F. Mader, auxiliary fire unit; Fred Judd, decontamination work and Dr. W. G. Carlisle, medical corp and nurses' units.

An effort is also being made to secure a speaker from the state headquarters who will bring movies of work being accomplished by the units throughout the state.

NAME OFFICERS

COUNCIL TURNS DOWN 'SANDBAG' GAS PROPOSAL

Legislators at Shelby Fail to Take Action on Gas Company's Offer.

SHELBY—City council turned down without a recorded vote a proposed "sandbag" gas rate ordinance offered by the Ohio Fuel Gas company Monday night which would have meant an increase in gas rates here over the present schedule.

The ordinance offered by the gas company set up the same rates that are in effect here for the first year, then the rates jumped for the next three years, and still higher for the final year of the five-year contract.

Rates for the first year of the proposed contract were: 20 cents per 100 cubic feet for first 500; 5.5 cents per 100 for next 9,500 cubic feet and 5 cents per 100 cubic feet for all in excess of 10,000 cubic feet.

The schedule for the next three years would be: 20 cents per cubic feet, 6 cents per 100 cubic feet for next 1,500, 5.5 cents per 100 cubic feet for next 98,000 and 5 cents per 100 cubic feet for all in excess of 100,000.

The final year rates in the contract were: 20 cents per 100 cubic feet for first 500, 6 cents per 100 cubic feet for next 4,500, 5.5 cents per 100 cubic feet for next 95,000 and 5 cents per 100 cubic feet for all in excess of 100,000.

While the average 5,000-foot consumer is paying 69 cents a thousand cubic feet of gas, he would pay 71 cents per thousand the second, third and fourth years of the proposed contract and 74 cents a thousand during the final year.

Council members said that they did not want a "sandbag" gas rate which sets one schedule for part of the contract and then raises the rates during the contract making the final year the highest. Members also pointed out that they believe a five-year contract is too long a length of time for an ordinance to run under war conditions.

Council instructed Mayor Morris to return the contract to gas officials and tell them if that was the only rate schedule they had available for Shelby that it would have to be sent through the state utilities commission as the council would not agree to such a schedule.

Councilmen agreed at a recent meeting that they would accept a renewal of the present rates which have been in effect here under a three-year contract that expired last year. The present rates continue in effect until a new contract is passed by the council.

The present rates are: 20 cents per 100 cubic feet for first 500, 5.5 cents per 100 cubic feet for 9,500 and 5 cents per 100 cubic feet for all in excess of 10,000.

PAPER ON 'MUSEUMS' GIVEN BY MRS. WOLF

Victorian Club Has Luncheon, Program at Women's Club for Last Meeting Until Fall.

VICTORIAN CLUB members were entertained at luncheon Monday at the Women's Club by Mrs. Charles G. Brown and Mrs. J. Clark Custer. This was the last meeting of the year for the group. Spring flowers decorated the luncheon tables. Miss Lois MacKellar was weclomed as a new member.

The work done by the club during this year has been concerned with a study of Ohio. This has been to lay a foundation for next year's programs which will be based upon the same theme. In keeping with this plan, Mrs. Fred L. Wolf presented a very interesting paper on "Museums" at yesterday's meeting.

Definition of the word "Museum" given by Mrs. Wolf was that it means "a temple of the Muses, not to be regarded as a collection of curiosities, but as an engine of research and popular education."

Mrs. Wolf stated that the duties of a museum are two-fold: first, to the students; second, to the public. In regard to the public, the museum has three classifications: (1) to stimulate curiosity, gratification of which is knowledge; (2) to minister to the sense of beauty, showing what man has been able to create out of clay, stone, metal or pigments, thus giving man a means of training his tastes; and (3) to provide a means of recreation and enjoyment.

She added that a good motto for museum work is "For the people, for education and for science." Mrs. Wolf pointed out that Ohio might well be proud of its many and outstanding museums. A few of the larger and better known places of this kind are the Akron Art Institute, the Cincinnati Art Museum, the Taft House at Cincinnati, the Cleveland Museum of Art and the Cleveland Museum of Natural History, the Ohio State Museum at Columbus and the Toledo Museum of Art.

All of these institutions, said Mrs. Wolf, cooperate extensively with colleges and universities. Often new educational activites have been offered even before there is a demand for them in the schools.

The speaker described several of Ohio's outstanding museums in detail. She explained that Taft House was donated to Cincinnati by Charles Taft, half-brother of President Taft. She described it as a "serene, dignified Georgian home surrounded by a border of ivy which makes the pillars even more beautiful." Taft House contains a fine collection of works of such painters as Rembrandt, Reynolds, Gainsborough, Goya Sargeant and Duveneck.

The Cleveland Museum of Art is outstanding in the United States. It contains a permanent collection of Egyptian, classical, medieval and modern western art. Educational work covers a broad field: it gives a group of lectures, children's entertainment, clubs and conventions have exhibits there and classes in art are conducted. A separate publicity department provides newspapers with information. There are many other contributions to the public interest also.

The Toledo Museum of Art ranks with New York's Metropolitan Museum and Mrs. Wolf stated that it is not to be ranked on a score of endowment or architecture or collection, but as an exponent of democratization. Attendance in 1936 equalled 104 per cent of the city's population and it is not unusual for 2,500 children to visit it on a Saturday morning. Its antique glass collection is ranked by the Encyclopedia Britannica as the best in the world.

Creed for Toledo's Museum is the following: "No city is great unless it rests the eye, feeds the intellect and leads its people out of bondage of the common-place."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHY IS HE DOING IT?

GIVE THE declarer credit for having some kind of reason for what he does. Putting yourself in his place, then figuring out what kind of holding would cause you to make the same moves as he—that is often the prescription which enables you to read his holding, and therefore your partner's holding. So, when the late stages of the play arrive, and you have to select a discard, your job may be made childishly simple, instead of difficult or a pure guess

West led his club 3 to the J. South finessed the diamond 10 to the Q and won the returned club 6 with the A to succeed with the second diamond finesse, then drop the K with the A and cash the 2, East discarding a heart. West a spade and South a spade. The heart 2 was sent from dummy to the 10 and Q, and the club 9 knocked out dummy's K.

The declarer, having seen a K and Q from West and only a Q from East, decided East was the more likely to have the heart A, so led the K from dummy to throw him in and make him then lead up to the spades But West had the heart A and won it When West now cashed his club 10, dummy putting on the heart 2, East had his chance to make a mistake, which he certainly did.

Thinking West had a heart to lead, and expecting him to lead it—as he said later—he decided to hold his heart J, and so got rid of one of his three spades. West had only spades, however, so had to lead one to the dummy, the two tops dropping the Q and the J making the game trick. A simple question would have made East's discarding job easy for him. Why would the declarer have led hearts from the dummy, unless he had four of them himself? If East had asked that question, he would have realized his partner had no more hearts, so would have discarded his J on the tenth trick and would have taken the setting trick with his spade Q

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Would I have to use my little silencer pistol again? That question came fearfully into my mind as the raucous voice of the man posing as Professor Diswell shouted at me.

Only to save my life and that of the helpless, gagged old man, who, as surely as if I had seen him, I knew was lying in the next room, had I shot at the impostor's wrist.

I do not believe I would ever get over the shock if I should be the means of killing or seriously maiming even so vile a person as I knew the man before me to be. But I kept both my trigger finger and my voice steady, as I noted with inward relief that the man had not accompanied his command with a single step toward me.

Won't Take Chances.

He was not yet sure; I deduced, that my accurate shot at his wrist was not a matter of luck alone, but he was taking no chances that my assertion of accuracy in aim was not correct

He had counted upon startling me with his raucous shout, perhaps to the extent of causing a faltering in the hand which held the pistol, a faltering which would enable him to leap and snatch the pistol from me.

I met his shout with a weapon which never has failed me, a light, derisive laugh.

"You would better save your breath," I advised him. "You are going to need it. And another thing—I want the key to the door over there You probably put it in your coat pocket—not the one with the small bulge in it, which probably holds a pistol like mine—but the other one. Put your unwounded hand into that pocket and lay the key upon that table right by your hand. And don't make any other movement, for at the least sign of one which I do not like, I shall use this pistol without mercy."

He tried to glare me down, but I met his gaze cooly.

"I am waiting," I said "If you have not put that key upon the table when I have finished counting ten, I shall begin to shoot."

"I haven't—" he began, but I ignored him and began counting slowly, "One, two, three, four—"

He did not move until the count of five, but the steadiness of my voice and eyes must finally have convinced him, for at the count of "six" his hand went into his pocket, and well before the count of ten the key lay upon the table.

"Now," I said, "back up until you get to the wall." For I had noted that behind him was a clear space, with no article of furniture within reach of a person standing there.

Impostor Obeys.

"Don't delay!" I admonished sharply. "Move backward! Don't turn around! Hurry!"

He obeyed, moving backward gingerly until he reached the wall.

"Now turn around," I ordered, "facing the wall, and get as close as you can to it. Then raise your arms high above your head. No," as I saw him wince with pain when he tried to obey, "you need not raise your wounded arm; just the other. Now remain perfectly still. Do not dare to move. I shall have my eyes on you every second."

"You can't get away with this," he said. "Even if your man outside disposes of mine, there are more men—plenty of them—coming here almost at once."

I laughed again, and purposely borrowed a phrase from Dicky.

Has Misgivings.

"That will be just too bad—for them, and for you," I said. "Do you think I was so mad as to come here without sufficient bodyguard for any emergency? I would advise you to relax and take it easy until my men come in and attend to you. When they do, I will try to ease your wounded arm the best I can, until we can give you a physician's attention."

His only answer was a fierce muttered imprecation, to which I paid no attention. But as I moved toward the table to get the key to the door, I began to feel a distinctly empty feeling inside me. Where were Gus and the other men?

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

After bidding spades strongly, as high as three, South doubles West's 3-No Trumps on this deal and North leads the spade 8, South playing the 10. How should West now plan to make his contract?

SEEKS FOREST FIRE PROTECTION

Muskingum Conservancy Area Wants Airplane Patrol of 18 Counties.

The Muskingum Watershed Conservancy district is seeking $11,600 from the state emergency board for forest fire protection this year in the conservancy area which includes eastern Richland county, Newton Mansfield, president of the conservancy district board, said today.

A hearing of the appropriation request is scheduled for Thursday afternoon before the state emergency board in Columbus.

Mansfield pointed out that fire protection would cover an 18-county area which would include the Pleasant Hill reservoir section, Mohican State park, and the newly reforested district surrounding Charles Mill reservoir at the Richland-Ashland county line.

Appropriation of the funds sought by the district would finance an aerial patrol during the fire hazard seasons. Fire wardens would report fires by short-wave radio or in messages dropped from planes.

Despite the protection afforded by CCC boys and other agencies, fire losses estimated at $120,000 were reported last year in the Muskingum conservancy area, Mansfield said.

$45,358 BALANCE AT END OF MARCH

A $50,000 tax advance late in March helped the county to finish the month with a balance of $45,358 in its general fund, according to Auditor Norman L. Wolfe's financial report.

The county spent $36,535 from its operating fund and received $66,374, including the tax advance, during March. The general fund balance at the beginning of March was $15,519.

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—The men of different groupings of mankind don't all fight the same—not with the same determination, ferocity and indifference to death, suffering and wounds.

Gen. Johnson.

For a long time the difference was thought to be racial. For example, it was a kind of axiom that colored men were so put together nervously that they couldn't stand heavy and long continued shell fire.

But records of their regiments in our regular army, especially when they were properly led and supported with their own artillery, exploded that theory.

It used to be said that Filipinos were first-class fighting men, except that they regarded a scrap as a kind of a day's work and saw no particular disgrace in leaving for home when the sun went down. Their record on Batan peninsula is answer enough to that slander.

For centuries there has lived in what is now Germany, a race of people whose military record shows that while they have frequently been defeated and down, they are never out.

An early description of them is in Tacitus who mentions them as soldiers with a sort of awe. They stopped the advance of the Roman Empire. Charlemagne decimated them, but they came back during his life time to make it hot for him.

Napoleon beat them unmercifully, but, just as did we in 1918, failed to disarm them thoroughly. In the German case, the reason for military supremacy seems to be a very old tradition amounting almost to a religion.

Thus there seems to be no single common factor in the military formula and no racial monopoly or invincibility. Religion, or a long record of victory, or of conquest—each has, at some time in history, been the key-note of success.

Now, as never before, there seem to be at least three new factors—supremacy in new and powerful mechanized weapons including the ability to produce them; propaganda, building up the morale of the victorious side and bearing down that of the vanquished; unity, including uniformity in bodily perfection and similarity in outlook and methods of thinking.

If there is anything in this analysis we have great advantages in every one of its elements, except, perhaps, in the possession of great leadership which we have not yet had time to prove.

The tradition of heroism under the most trying conditions stands out in our history during the entire period of the building of the nation. No man can turn yellow without letting his forbears down. Patriotic devotion amounting almost to religious fervor we still possess in full measure. Our ability and resources to build new arms is unequalled.

Newspapers, the movies and automobiles have given our young men such a common cast of character, that no great differences distinguish those from different states. We are more nearly one people than many far smaller and more compact nations.

We've got the stuff and the only thing that can lick us is topside bungling and spreading our strength too thin by trying to fight in too many places at one time.

CIO Split Brings New Labor Civil War

LONDON FEARS VICHY ACTION WITH GERMANS

Reappearance of Laval Seen as Hint of Nazi Plan to Obtain Fleet.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — Apprehension over the part the Vichy government will play in the momentous events of this year is growing here in view of the emergence of Pierre Laval from the shadows, the transfer of the French battleship Dunkergue from Algiers to Toulon and the outstanding strategical importance of Madagascar to the struggle for control of the Indian ocean.

The reappearance of Laval, former vice premier in the Petain government at Vichy, was called "ominous" by qualified sources. They believed the Germans had chosen him to press Vichy for surrender of all or part of the French fleet to German control.

Laval's hand was said to be strengthened in this aim by a new factor—a growing agitation in the German army of occupation for direct control of all France by the Germans.

Chief of State Petain and Laval conferred recently in and near Vichy and an official announcement indicated they had reviewed the question of collaboration with Germany. However, advices reaching foreign diplomatic quarters in Bern, Switzerland, said Petain had declined to take Laval back into his cabinet, from which Laval was ousted in December, 1940.

Vichy was said to be fully conscious of the feeling of the German army and this, plus the old instrument of blackmail through the control of the lives of thousands of French prisoners in Germany, makes Laval's position stronger than heretofore, London sources said.

At the worst Germany will assume control of the French fleet through pressure on Vichy, they said.

This fleet, plus the Italian navy, probably would give the Axis numerical superiority in the Mediterranean at the moment.

One bright spot in the situation is the United States influence with Vichy, informed sources said. One source said that Vichy is "most eager" to maintain relations with the United States."

He called these relations and their promise of food and medical supplies for the French people a "cardinal plank in the Vichy policy."

"From sales tax stamps to war savings stamps" could well be the slogan of the Richland County Lamplighters council, an organization for the blind. The council had received a check today for $67.67 for used sales tax stamps turned back to the state. Jimmy Lemley, member of the council, said the money will be invested in war savings stamps for blind council members. "We want to keep on collecting stamps until we can get enough money for at least $5 worth of stamps for every deserving blind person in the county," Jimmy said. "We are thankful to every person who turns in their stamps to us."

Planting a "victory garden" may be commendable but Mansfield police believe that at least one city farmer is a bit too zealous in his agricultural efforts. Police base their belief on the report that a wheelbarrow was stolen from in front of the Schmidt and Peat Hardware company store on Bowman street. The company reported that the wheelborrow, valued at $5.25, was stolen from the walk in front of their store sometime Saturday.

SEVEN STATE UMW LEADERS BOLT GROUP

Charge 'Unwarranted' Attacks on Lewis; Rift Comes on Eve of Joint Rally.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—American labor faced a new civil war today after seven state leaders of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers union bolted the CIO.

Whether Lewis will lead his mine workers and other unions under his control out of the CIO and form a third labor movement remained a matter of lively speculation in Washington. However, the resignations brought the day when Lewis will have to make a decision much closer.

The seven state leaders, who held dual positions as officials of the mine workers and also as regional directors of the CIO, quit their CIO directorships in protest against what they said were unwarranted attacks on Lewis.

The split developed as labor planned to launch a campaign through a joint AFL-CIO rally at Pittsburgh tonight to tell the country and its soldiers and sailors that it is 100 percent behind the war effort.

Both AFL President William Green and CIO Chief Philip Murray will speak. It will be the first time since the CIO was formed that heads of the two organizations appear on the same speaker's platform.

Alarmed over attacks on the 40-hour week and public reaction against strikes, the labor leaders got together to arrange the rally. Other similar meetings are planned. Labor leaders also hoped that the rallies would help national unity.

However, informed observers in Washington pointed out that the campaign may have serious repercussions within the CIO ranks. Staunch followers of Lewis are fearful, it was said, that some agreement might be reached between Green and Murray that would strike at Lewis' power. As a result of these suspicions, the number of resignations of CIO officials may be increased.

There also has been some bitterness, it was learned, over activities of the United Construction Workers, headed by A. D. Lewis, a brother of John L. Lewis, and district 50 of the mine workers, of which Kathryn Lewis, daughter of John L., is an official.

Foes of Lewis charge that the construction workers and district 50 are "raiding" both CIO and AFL unions. The situation in Michigan is particularly bitter, it was reported, and it may flare into the open at the convention of the CIO's Auto Workers union, which starts in Detroit today.

Opponents of Lewis charge that he is going to use the mine workers, district 50 and the construction workers as a basis for forming a third big union. District 50 has organized workers in many fields, including dairy farmers, building service employes and even clerks in perfume shops. If a revolt assumes serious proportions in the CIO, the AFL, it was believed, will be drawn into the vortex, since many jurisdictional disputes are almost certain to develop.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

I AM interested in those recent Brooklyn experiments in artificial fog, and I hope that if these ever prove successful the patents will be released to Broadway, for I can see several ways of adapting the defense device to cafe life.

Kilgallen

I have in mind marketing the invention in miniature, and I think it would come in very handy, although it might do the item - gathering business considerable harm. Think how it would work in the Stork club when a playboy is sitting with a brand new blond and his ever-faithful regular gal walks in with her brother or some other permissible male. Ordinarily, this is a pretty tense moment for one and all. But if the playboy in question could whip out his miniature fog-dispenser, press the switch, and immediately become enveloped in a dense vapor, his sweetheart would observe nothing more than that the room seemed a bit smoky, and a nasty situation would be averted.

As a protection from bores, the portable smoke-screen would be unbeatable, provided, of course, you get the bead on the bore before he sees you and starts wending toward your table. Because a bore, once he has located your position, will, of course, penetrate a smoke-screen.

The small artificial fog also would be invaluable for use in the larger clubs when the floor show becomes too awful.

Oh, it has endless possibilities. I think I will ask for a 14-kt., slightly-jeweled artificial fog container for my birthday.

With the gin rummy fad on, an impresario doesn't even need a shoestring to open a night club now. All he needs is a few decks of cards and some tables. And I guess the old courting query, boy to girl, of: "Where would you like to go dancing?" is changed to: "Where do you want to play cards?" . . . I guess everyone who writes for public consumption learns sooner or later that people "read fast" and often carry away an impression that has nothing to do with what the writer originally batted out on his portable. For instance, several weeks ago, while musing in this space, I mentioned that I thought Billie Burke would be ideal to play the Grace George part in "Spring Again." The box-office at the Playhouse reports to me that on the very next matinee, day after the column appeared, a sweet lady playgoer approached the ticket window and asked, "Is Grace George playing it today, or Billie Burke?"

I am getting tired of war books, and still I can't resist reading the good ones that keep coming out. Those volumes probably account for a lot of nightmares. . . . Hey, here it is Spring and no penguins or baby sea lions or other fauna in the fountain at Rockefeller Plaza—how about it, boys? Kindly fill 'er up. . . . I have always, since childhood, heard what a great comedian Charlie Chaplin was, and his picture, "The Gold Rush," was one of the first films I ever saw—but Chaplin's comedy in that made me cry, and his last film that I saw, "The Dictator," made me yawn. I guess that is why I think Bob Hope is the greatest comedian I ever saw on the screen. He makes me laugh more than anybody else. Perhaps he is not an artist at all and the credit should go to the gag-writers and the director and the film cutter and the situation-spiker; I doubt it, but maybe.—Anyway, the result is that Bob Hope is funny.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich.—(AP)— Tugs worked today to free three freighters aground on an island in Whitefish bay north of the Soo locks.

Soft ice was reported impeding 40 to 50 other vessels in the bay, but coast guards said the situation was not serious. A shift in the wind and the breaking of shore ice caused the blockade, they said.

FILES PROTEST

Erie Says Assessment For Paving Too High.

The Erie railroad has filed an order of remonstrance with Mansfield's city council protesting the assessment against their property in connection with the improvement of Bowman street between the Baltimore and Ohio and Erie railroads last summer.

Total cost of the project, according to R. R. Black, clerk of council was $3,800 with the city paying $1,500 of the cost. The Erie railroad was assessed $410 of the remaining $2,300, Black says, and is protesting that this amount was too high for the benefit its property received from the improvement.

City council is expected to name three disinterested property-holders to hear all objections to the cost of improving the contested strip of pavement. No date has been set as yet for the hearing.

WIFE SLAIN IN OHIO STABBING

Husband Wounds Self, to Face Murder Charge If He Recovers.

(By Associated Press)

LORAIN—Murder charges will be filed against Andrew Doinoff, 36-year-old South Lorain steelworker, in the fatal stabbing of his wife Anna, 26, if he recovers from self-inflicted wounds administered with a butcher knife, police said today.

Edward Sherman, 60, former city councilman and friend of the family, said he and several others went to the Doinoff home after funeral services for the steel workers mother, Mrs. Katherine Doinoff, 57.

Hearing a scream from the kitchen, he rushed out to find Doinoff attacking his wife with a butcher knife, Sherman told Sergeant Britt Buda. "I rushed at him and threw him into the corner and ran out to call police and an ambulance," Sherman related.

When the police arrived, Doinoff was found unconscious and bleeding from knife wounds. Nicholas Doinoff told police he saw his brother stab himself.

Doinoff's two daughters by a previous marriage told detectives their father had been jealous and had accused his wife of associating with other men.

Police Inspector John A Meister said murder charges would be filed if Doinoff recovers.

WPB ASSERTS SPRING CLEANING CAN HELP TO DEFEAT HIROHITO

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Ladies — spring cleaning with a gusto can help beat Hirohito.

That's the word of the government today which asks that you dig into that conglomeration in the attic and cellar and bring out those discarded objects. They can be turned into ships, tanks and guns for the war effort.

The call for these collections was made by Lessing J. Rosenwald, chief of the WPB's bureau of industrial conservation, who said that "vast quantities of the things we need would be brought to light by a concerted spring house cleaning."

"House cleaning in the average American home generally uncovers things which are considered worthless or too old for further use," he said. "Too often in the past these collections of waste materials which have cluttered up attics, cellars and backyards have been destroyed or lost to further use by being carried away by municipal refuse collectors."

Rosenwald said that in cleaning the attic look for electric cords, electric toasters, irons, heaters, keys, locks, iron springs, old coats, bathing caps, old water bottles, lamps and lighting fixtures, broken radios, metal toys, and busted vacuum cleaners.

In the cellar look for old coal stoves, fireplace equipment, old furnace parts, faucets, radiators, and old tools, while the backyard might give up auto parts, chains, license plates, lawn mowers, old tires and tubes, pickaxes, wire fencing, wheelbarrows, plows and hoes.

LOSSES CUT

Knox Reveals Drop in Ship Sinkings on East Coast.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Secretary of the Navy Knox today asserted that there has been a definite reduction in ship sinkings along the Atlantic coast within the past week, and expressed the belief this was due to more aggressive anti-submarine patrol work.

While a total of 14 attacks by U-boats in United States coastal waters were announced by the navy last week, Knox pointed out that only two of those actually occurred during that period.

Knox pointed out, however, there was a possibility that the drop in attacks might be due to the German habit of sending U-boats to the shores in successive waves and then holding off for a short period.

ENDS WALKOUT

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— The AFL Brotherhood of Railway Clerks and Freight Handlers today called off a brief walkout of 900 employes at the major car-loading terminals which threatened to disrupt shipment of war materials.

Slower Driving Cuts Deaths On Ohio Highways

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Slower driving by Ohio motorists not only has conserved tires but saved lives as well, Harry E. Neal, head of the state highway department's traffic safety division, reported today.

Deaths on state highways outside of municipalities dropped to 147 in the first three months this year, compared with 182 in the first quarter of 1941, he said, and the number of collision deaths dropped from 103 to 66, indicating slower speeds.

There was a five per cent gain in total accidents but Neal said an increase in highway patrol stations accounted for the gain since the patrol undoubtedly reported more mishaps.

All traffic deaths in Ohio, including cities, totaled 195 in January against 175 in January 1941, but effects of tire rationing apparently were not felt until early February.

SEEKS PERMIT TO BUILD TANK

Barnes Company Asks City For Permission to Erect Testing Device.

The Barnes Manufacturing company has requested permission from city council to construct a test water tank on Longview avenue just west of North Main street for testing pumps being produced for defense purposes.

The company, in an application to be presented to council at its meeting tonight, says that the tank "is necessary" for its defense production.

The Barnes plant manufactures pumps and other products used by different units of the army and navy. The proposed test tank would extend 12 feet out from the company's property line into Longview avenue, but according to the petition, would "not interfere with traffic nor use of the street by the public.

Also to be considered tonight is the petition of the Tappan Stove company that Rocky Fork street, running between the stove company's property and the Pennsylvania railroad, be vacated.

America's Greatest Enemy—Who?

Mr. T. N. Basse, 767 Hazel St., Akron, Ohio, says: "I think mucus conditions are public enemies. In my case constipation developed a number of ailments, particularly indigestion which seemed to always bring on a mucous condition. Now I always use World's Tonic when constipated and the indigestion and mucus conditions are greatly improved." Just because your head, nose, and throat are not affected doesn't mean that you are free from mucus peril. Steer clear of constipation. It can bring on indigestion which in turn can develop mucus conditions. For all-around toning and stimulating of the intestinal tract try the famous World's Tonic. It contains roots, barks, herbs, etc., from different places in the old countries where many of us, or most of our ancestors originally came from. Get World's Tonic today at Miller, Wm. T. Hursh, Weinberger and all other modern Drug Stores

WHAT BROUGHT THIS ABOUT?

What a vast difference there is between the stores of today and yesteryear. Then, the family's food was mostly scooped from open bins and barrels, exposed to dirt and smells. The cat in the cracker barrel was no fairy tale—and flies got first chance at everything. Nails and beans were weighed on the same scales; harness, dry goods and foods were dispensed over the same counter. All this is changed now.

Modern Food Stores are models of cleanliness. Neatly arranged counters and shelves are lined with attractive packages, cans, and bottles of faultlessly prepared foods.

THE CHANGE IS DUE TO ADVERTISING

"Mass production brings prices down while the quality improves. But the commodities produced by mass production cannot be put into widespread circulation without advertising. PEOPLE MUST KNOW ABOUT THEM IF THEY ARE TO BUY—AND UNLESS LOTS OF PEOPLE BUY THERE CAN BE NO MASS PRODUCTION. Advertising, then, serves directly to bring prices within the purchasing power of an ever-increasing number of buyers . . . advertising has made a major contribution—perhaps THE major contribution to the American standard of living."

—GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY, in "The American Way of Life"

. . . advertising that made mass production and distribution possible—forced better merchandising and sales methods—established brand names—promoted active competition between products—formed definite customer preferences. This same thing has happened in practically all industries . . . thanks to ADVERTISING!

15,000 WATCH CELEBRATION OF ARMY DAY HERE

2,500 March as Mansfielders Jam All Vantage Points to Witness Spectacle.

rade, but no one seemed to mind.

It was a different kind of parade than Mansfield usually sees Colorful floats were few and there was no laughter and wild cheering. . There was an occasional burst of applause for units that caught the crowds' eye and men frequently doffed their hats as flags went by.

The crowd seemed to sense the solemnity of the celebration The spectators knew that war touches the lives of everyone and winning it is a serious and huge task.

It required 30 minutes for the parade to pass a fixed point, but for an hour after it was over traffic was forced to creep through the downtown district while police, deputy sheriffs, and state highway patrolmen helped the crowd to move out of the congested area.

"Everything went off in great shape," said Floyd Dent, grand marshal of the parade "The division leaders and their assistants deserve a lot of credit for the way the parade was handled from start to finish"

Dent was impressed with the spirit of the paraders, many of whom were marching in a parade for the first time in years

Every units seemed to have a great spirit and it was one of the most tolerant groups I've ever seen," he said.

Most of the marchers were civilians who have volunteered their services in home defense work, but the city's soldiers and sailors had their place in the line of march too A number of them home on furlough marched in the first division of the parade

Not far behind them were the parents of dozens of Mansfield youths who are already on the war scene or in camps preparing for action against the enemy. Near the front of the parade were members of McVey post, American Legion the fellows who know what war is because they fought in one nearly a quarter of a century ago Heading the Legionnaires were Sam Fox, post commander, and R. B Gardner, past state commander and now a captain in the army air corps

Right behind the Legion delegation came the Legion drum and bugle corps, and then the crowd got its first look at the city's Ohio State Guardsmen in their new dark blue uniforms The unit is under the command of Capt. Glenn L. Bierly, veteran of the first World war. The unit displayed snappy form as it marched along the parade route.

Holding an important place in the parade were delegations from the city's major industries — Westinghouse, Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, Humphryes Manufacturing company, Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, and the Tappan Stove company

The Westinghouse marching unit, largest of the industrial groups, included approximately 600 members of the plant's defenders against possible attack Among them were the police, firemen, plant wardens, first aid group, and engineering corps A truck in the parade bore this statement "Westinghouse is Prepared"

Just as impressive were the Delano lodge members and auxiliary, comprising a large percentage of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company workers and their wives The Empire placard read 'Bonds—Only More Will Win the War—Empire"

Pledging all possible help in selling bonds and stamps and urging more purchases of them were the Humphryes and Tappan employes who moved along the line of march in cars

The Mansfield Tire and Rubber company car bore a placard which pledged company employes to 'Buy More Bonds and Build More Tires to Beat the Axis"

Marching in a body were the city's doctors and dentists, many of whom have contributed their services in examining hundreds of selectees during the past 16 months.

The marching volunteer nurses, Red Cross nurses, and nurses' aids received a "hand" from the crowd as they passed wearing attractive uniforms. Also popular with the crowd was the group of Civil Air patrolmen.

The 125 News-Journal carriers who sell war savings stamps along with their papers drew applause all along the line of march

Marching erect and proudly back of the Johnny Appleseed junior high band were Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts from the Mansfield area with their Scout leaders

The Girl Scouts made a splendid parade appearance Many spectators agreed that, outside of the military organizations, they were the best marching unit in the procession. They kept their lines straight and they were in step.

Well up toward the front of the second division of the parade was the colorful float of the Soldiers'-Citizens' committee which sponsors the "going-away" parties for selectees leaving the city for the army. The float, sponsored by the Manufacturers' club, was trimmed in red, white and blue while on top rode a girl dressed in gold and carrying a torch as Miss Liberty

The city's mail carriers were in the parade too, one of the mail trucks telling the public: "You Write 'Em; We'll Deliver 'Em."

The county war bond sales committee composed one of the larger groups in the parade, while the Volunteers of America, the County Nutrition committee, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars were represented with patriotic entries

There were bands aplenty. Five of them and the American Legion drum and bugle corps made the city's buildings echo with marching music. First in line was the Senior high school band with its attractive drum majorettes ahead and performing difficult tricks with batons

Leading the way—in the parade anyway — for Mansfield's Home Guard unit was the McVey Post American Legion drum and bugle corps made up of men who fought in the other war and are doing their part now in this one

Then came the Baku Grotto band a veteran parade unit that's always popular with Mansfield crowds, partly because of the colorful uniforms with their fezzes

Heading the third division was the Johnny Appleseed junior high band, youngest in the city but one that Mansfield has already taken into its heart Next in line was the Westinghouse United Electrical Workers' Union band, the players looking snappy in their white jackets.

Separating the Westinghouse delegation and the city's civilian defense groups was the John Simpson junior high aggregation Heading the last division was the Madison high band.

Wether conditions prevented airplanes from the Civil Air patrol from making a flight over the parade route A strong wind at the port made take-offs hazardous

As Mansfield's Army Day Parade Passed By

All Mansfield was downtown last night to view the city's biggest Army Day parade in history Sidewalks were packed with thousands of residents who paid homage to the armed forces in a stirring parade of military and civilian units 1—Company F Mansfield's unit of the Ohio State Guard swings along Park avenue west 50 strong in one of their first uniformed appearances 2—Miss Genevieve Buzinski, 121 East Second street, represented the Spirit of Liberty on the Soldiers'-Citizens' float sponsored by Mansfield industries The float is shown as it waited for the formation of the parade lines at the intersection of Park avenue and Marion avenue 3—"Angels of Mercy," Mansfield's nurses marched in the parade with little Onne Wilkinson as their mascot dressed in a nurse's uniform Holding the nurses' banner, were Miss Gayle Rife, left and Miss Mary Ferrell, right 4—The Mansfield News-Journal carrier boys, who have been doing double duty by selling U S defense bonds and stamps to their customers drew rounds of applause as they marched This picture of them was taken as they swung past the Madison theater, carrying huge defense stamp placards 5—The photographer catches a section of the crowds which piled four and five deep along the line of march to view the parade 6—Traffic comes to a standstill at the intersection of one of the city's busiest corners, Fourth and Main streets, as spectators await the parade.

Tire Orders Hit Athletic Programs In County Schools

office of Richland county School Superintendent Boyd Robinson today that nearly all the county schools use school buses for transporting athletes to games.

"This is a serious blow to us," Coach Al Fendrick of Madison high school declared. "We have always used school buses for athletic trips, and while we might be able to get private cars for basketball trips, it will be a real problem for us to get enough cars for football transportation."

Fendrick admitted he was puzzled by the divergent stand taken by various governmental divisions in the war effort

"We are told by one division to increase our sport programs in order to build sound bodies and keep up the civilian morale, and then another takes away the means of operating sports programs," Fendrick said "High schools throughout the country should get together in a movement to regain the use of school buses for athletic transportation Certainly the use of a number of private cars will wear out more rubber than the use of one bus"

At Columbus, State High School Athletic Commissioner H R Townsend said he expected the school bus ruling to result in drastic modification of next fall s scholastic football program, and to cut deeply into the entry list of this spring's track meets

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Art Hilborn is a guy who has had plenty of kicks out of his bowling career, what with rolling four perfect games, and turning in his share of 700 matches, including one over the past weekend, but he freely admits the biggest drive he's gotten out of this season on the lanes was handed to him Saturday by Mansfield high school's kid pin-punishers.

Rules of the national high school telegraphic tournament in which the kids participated demanded that a representative of the ABC act as scorekeeper and see that the match was rolled according to Hoyle.

So as president of the Mansfield City Bowling association, Art qualified for the scorekeeping job.

"We didn't have a foul judge," Art reports, "so the kids took turns sitting in the foul box, and maybe you think they didn't call 'em

"So strictly honest they were, they called five fouls on themselves, which gives you some idea how much wood they'd have had in addition to the 2678 actual score, and 3032 handicap mark they turned in.

"Bill Maxwell drew the red light on a perfect strike. So what does he do but come right back to make a spare out of it.

"And that 2678 was real bowling for the kids as they hit 428 pins over their average," Art maintains.

The American High School Bowling Congress can feel very happy today that Mansfield won the first annual tournament, instead of some team from far, far away on the Pacific coast.

For the Mansfield boys are saving the AHSBC money. One of the prizes in the telegraphic tournament is a free trip to the ABC in Columbus, all expenses paid.

Haw! What if a Columbus team had won the telegraph meet?

It's been all of 19 years since I played, pardon me, since Cowboy Weston played pool with me in the Hotel pool room in Lorain.

Fifty or no count in the two end pockets was the way the Cowboy used to spot me, and it was a very happy day for me when I got all the way to 20 before the former world champion would run out.

And on the billiard table it was five or no count in three cushions on a game of 25, and once I got very lucky and got five for myself before he ran the string.

Pool for me was for the free in the Cowboy's billiard emporium back in those lush days of my misspent youth. The Cowboy, you see, had been around enough to know that newspaper guys usually were to be found behind the financial eight-ball, and he could bank on it they'd have no dough to be dropping in the side pocket.

Weston is giving exhibitions this afternoon and tonight at Andregg Billiards and the Smokehouse and I hope the fans will be as good to him now that he is old, as he was to me when I was young

I'm all wound down, and know it too,
It's time to go, I take my cue.

Return Of Dead Ball Forecast

NEW YORK—(INS)—Possibility of the return of the dead ball to baseball was foreseen today by Ford Frick, president of the National league. Frick based his opinion on the fact that the present supply of lively balls may run out before the end of the coming season, which opens a week from today

"When the present supply is gone," Frick said, "the manufacturers will be faced by two alternatives. They can either re-process the wool from the worn balls or they must use an inferior grade in the balls to be manufactured in the future.

"Either way the ball is unlikely to be as lively as the ball now used. Last season the National league alone used more than 7,000 dozen balls. Which gives some idea of the problem faced by both baseball and the manufacturers."

OHIOAN LOSES

AUGUSTA, Ga. — (AP) — Mrs. Charles D. Harbaugh of Cleveland was eliminated in the quarter finals of the Forrest Hills women's golf tournament yesterday, two down, by Georgia Tainter of Fargo, N. D., who shot a woman's par 77.

Bowling Classic's Half Over

Keglers Roll 109, 216 Games in 35 Days.

COLUMBUS — (AP)—The American Bowling Congress reached the half-way mark today—35 days of maple mauling—after the nation's keglers wound up 109,216 games.

The highest game count was a 289 by Walter Selle of Rock Island, Ill., scored in the doubles. There have been three games of 287. One came yesterday when Dave Hammond of St. Paul threw 10 strikes in doubles competition. Tony Zietler of Kenosha, Wis., tossed 10 straight for 287 in his singles competition, but was so excited he slipped to 162 and 185 for a 634, which won't earn him any big money. A 287 by Glenn Shinn of Wooster, O., was the highest individual game in the team event thus far.

The only other scores in the 280's was an even 280 by Ed Copenhagen of Rochester, N. Y., in the doubles. Two men had 279. They were Ray Hultquist of Chicago, who leads the singles competition, and Louis Serianni of Detroit. Hultquist got 11 straight strikes in his 279 game.

The tournament still has to see its first perfect 300 game. In the 41 previous ABC tourneys, nine have been recorded out of 2,393,454 games bowled.

Bill Faust, jr., and Gene Swiesler of Indianapolis collected the high game in doubles to date—520. The top team game so far is a 1094 tallied by Milwaukee's Schlitz quintet, presently in second place with a 3105 total.

The ABC staff reported that 332 teams, or 20.5 per cent of those who rolled, have exceeded 2700. To date, 851 bowlers have scored 600 or better for a three-game count, compared to 1168 midway in the 1941 classic.

The Brunswick Red Crowns of New York gained fourth place in the team event yesterday with 2997. William Forslund of Brooklyn hit 731 to tie Robert Tritschler of Norwood, O., for second position in the singles. George Young of Long Island and Marty Cassio of Elizabeth, N. J., moved into fourth place in the doubles with 1339. Young corralled 694 and Cassio 645.

Register Plea For Old Golf Balls

CHICAGO—(INS)—Members of the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers association were told today that the supply of new golf balls will last only until about July 1—and not until then unless hoarding is prevented and rationing is inaugurated.

The warning came from representatives of the manufacturers, all of whom agreed that only rebuilt golf balls will be available on the market after midsummer. Several suggested that professionals limit the sale of balls to less than a dozen to a person.

One of the spokesmen for the manufacturers told the golfers, holding their annual spring session in Chicago, that about a million and a half used golf balls now are in the hands of the players. He urged that these be turned in at once for reconditioning so that the supply may last throughout the season.

"Since it takes four to five weeks to rebuild a ball," he said, "it is important that the old balls be turned in at once so they will be available when the present supply of new balls is exhausted."

Edwards Sent To Baltimore

"But He'll Be Back," Says Lou Boudreau.

GREENVILLE, Miss. — (INS) — Hank Edwards, the 23-year-old Norwalk, O., outfielder who exhibited great form in spring practice drills and citrus league contests, was en route to Baltimore today to join the Orioles of the International league.

Manager Lou Boudreau announced the decision to option the young fielder for more seasoning shortly after Colonel (Buster) Mills, purchased from the Kansas City Blues, a Yankee farm team, arrived in camp. Mills will be used as utility outfielder.

Edwards came up from Mansfield of the Ohio State league. He succumbed to the superior slugging of Oris Hockett who has the right field job cinched but Hank will be back, Boudreau said. Of all the recruits in camp Edwards is the most likely rookie to make good.

HURLS NO-HIT GAME, BUT LOSES IT 1-2

VILLANOVA, Pa.—(UP)—Hank Donohue hurled a no-hit game but lost it yesterday.

Donohue, Villanova college pitcher, held the Vermont university team hitless and retired the first man up in the ninth inning. He injured his arm and Major McDonnell, former Brown prep hurler, struck out the last two Vermonters.

Vermont's 2-1 victory was gained on wild throws and fielding errors. Villanova collected six hits.

Tribe Hurlers Going Route

Look Ahead to Opening Day and Season's Grind.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians, with an eye to the calendar, are beginning to give their pitchers a nine-inning chore.

Mel Harder, the probable starter in the first game at Cleveland stadium against the White Sox a week from Friday, was sent to the mound today against the Giants. The New Yorkers chose two hurlers—Carl Hubbell and Bob Carpenter, whose combined efforts were good for one of their team's two victories over Cleveland.

Jim Bagby went the whole route yesterday at Greenville, Miss., and though the Giants hammered him for 12 hits, he pulled through with Cleveland's seventh win in nine grapefruit circuit encounters with the National leaguers. Either Bagby or Al Milnar will face the Detroit Tigers in the season opener at Detroit next Tuesday.

The first of the Cleveland pitching staff to stay for more than seven innings, Bagby shut out the opposition for five innings, and then allowed them nine hits in the last four frames.

The Tribe, meanwhile, garnered only six safe blows, but four of them, including two homers, were bunched in the fourth inning.

All of the Indians' runs came in this stanza. After Ken Keltner had doubled and Jeff Heath had walked, Oscar Grimes' single brought in the first run. Grimes was playing first in place of Les Fleming for the day. Manager Lou Boudreau then slammed a homer over the left field wall. Ray Mack won a pass and Jim Hegan put a homer in the same spot.

BARRETT STARTS IN PITTSBURGH LINEUP

WICHITA, FALLS, Tex. — (U.P.)—Rookie Johnny Barrett, Vince DiMaggio and Maurice Van Robays will chase the flies, and ex-Dodger Pete Coscarart will be at shortstop for the Pittsburgh Pirates when they open at Cincinnati a week from today. The rest of the lineup likely will be Fletcher, 1b; Gusline, 2b; Elliott, 3b; and Lopez, catcher. With a 19-hit offensive, featuring DiMaggio's home run with two on, the Pirates dispatched the Athletics, 12-11, yesterday, in the fourth game of their final exhibition series, which continues here today.

Redlegs Show Batting Form

McKechnie Reserves Cheers For While.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(U.P.)—Skipper Bill McKechnie probably will reserve judgment for a few more days but his Cincinnati Reds appear to be gaining their batting eyes as they near home soil.

Excluding a puny four-hit effort against Heber Newsome on Sunday, the Redlegs have pounded 25 hits in two games in the past three days against the Boston Red Sox.

Rookie Bert Haas whose fielding has been uncertain virtually removed all doubt about his ability at the plate when he slammed out three singles and a double in a 13-hit barrage as the Reds lost to the Red Sox, 9 to 6, at Bowling Green yesterday.

The Reds still must co-ordinate their slugging with their usually good pitching but the recent lambasting tactics of the heretofore punchless Rhinelanders is encouraging for their pennant chances.

Gee Walker weighed in with a double and a single for runnerup honors to Haas yesterday.

Gene Thompson and Joe Beggs also yielded 13 hits to the Sox, including homers by Ted Williams and Lou Finney. Eddie Joost poled a round tripper for the Reds.

McKechnie said his club was set at every position except centerfield where Mike McCormick and Harry Craft are engaged in a drag-out fight for starting honors. The rest of the lineup would be Goodman in right field, Walker in left, Haas third base, Joost shortstop, Frey second base, Frank McCormick first and Hemsley catching.

The Sox and Reds renew their barnstorming here today.

'T' Stays In, Teatime's Out

New Stanford Coach Wants Players Rough.

PALO ALTO, Cal.—(U P)—Stanford university's football team will stick to former Coach Clark Shaughnessy's "T" formation next fall, but "tea-time manners" are out.

Jim Lawson, new head coach and all-American end at Stanford 18 years ago, told a squad of 76 candidates who reported for spring practice:

"I'm going to ask you to play a little bit rougher than I've ever seen a Stanford team play before. And don't call me Mr. Lawson. My name is Jim."

Lawson, replacing Shaughnessy who resigned to serve as naval athletic director at the University of Maryland, was faced with the problem of finding backfield stars to replace the departed Frankie Albert and Pete Kmetovic.

BUSINESS WOMAN, MOTHER OF THIRTEEN AWARDED 1942 TITLE

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Mrs. William N. Berry of Greensboro, N. C., mother of thirteen children, was hailed today as "the American mother of 1942." She was awarded the title by the American Mothers' committee of the Golden Rule foundation.

Mrs. Berry is 52 and in addition to rearing her large family has aided her husband in building up a large coal business of which she is secretary-treasurer.

One of her sons, John Vize Berry, sales manager of the coal company, has enlisted in the naval reserve. Another, Francis Berry, is a fourth-year medical student at Georgetown university and will enter the navy in June. Of her other boys, James Fant Berry is a second lieutenant in the army; Joseph L. is a midshipman at Annapolis; and W N. Berry, jr, is to be ordained a priest in the Passionist order, Union City, N. J., this year.

A daughter, Sister Mary Elizabeth, is a sister of charity at the Emergency hospital, Buffalo, N. Y., and another, Sister Margaret of the same order, is a teacher of Gregorian music at St. Dominic's school, Baltimore.

Powerful Story.

"Kings Row," picturization of Henry Bellamann's novel, showing at the Ohio, presents the frustrations of youthful romance when parental opposition and insanity rear their respective heads. Starring Robert Cummings, Ronald Reagan, Ann Sheridan and Betty Field at the top of a stellar cast including Charles Coburn and Claude Rains, the picture deals largely with Cummings in the role of "Parris Mitchell," the son of a foreign gentlewoman, and his secret romance with the sequestered daughter of a doctor in Kings Row. Reagan appears as the gay young blade of the village who starts tongues wagging when he is seen with "Randy," a girl from the wrong side of the tracks. Betty Field plays the doctor's daughter and Ann Sheridan has the part of "Randy."

Action Thriller.

An action story laid against China's efforts to keep supplies rolling over the famed Burma road, "A Yank on the Burma," opening tomorrow at the Madison, describes the adventures of a cab driver who is invited to lead a fleet of trucks over the Burma road after he captures two gangland killers Complications arise en route when at Rangoon he meets a girl anxious to get to Chungking and who joins the caravan. Barry Nelson plays the cabbie and Laraine Day has the role of the girl. Others in the cast are Keye Luke and Stuart Crawford. Roddy McDowell in "On the Sunny Side," is the second attraction.

Autry Western.

The foreman of a dude ranch shows a spoiled precocious girl the way to true sportsmanship in "Heart of the Rio Grande," Gene Autry's starring picture at the Ritz. Autry plays the foreman entrusted to the care of a group of girls from a swank eastern school for the summer, while Edith Fellows has the part of the girl who likes to make life miserable for everyone. Pierre Watkin and Joe Straugh, jr., are in the cast, and the picture features the popular tune, "Deep in the Heart of Texas." Rosalind Russell and Walter Pidgeon are featured in "Design for Scandal," the second picture.

Dual Role.

"The Corsican Brothers" continues at the Park, with Douglas Fairbanks, jr., in the dual role of brothers out to avenge the wrong inflicted on their family one hundred years before. The roles are completely dissimilar, with the one brother having a gay and dashing nature and the other one given to sombre and forboding thoughts. Ruth Warick and Akim Tamiroff are in the cast. Hugh Herbert is featured in "Don't Get Personal," the second picture.

Solemn Mass.

"The Eternal Gift," a 10-reel sound movie of the Catholic Solemn mass, produced under the supervision of the Perpetual Novena in honor of Our Sorrowful Mother, is showing today and Wednesday at the Majestic. The Knights of Columbus is sponsoring the showing of the picture which has the Rt. Rev. Msgr. F. I. Sheen as narrator, and Father J. R. Keane, O. S. M., as celebrant of the mass.

2—Card of Thanks

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

STOCKS CLING TO UPSIDE ON RECENT RALLY

Momentum Fails, But Trend Continues on Comeback Market Effort.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Many stocks lost rallying momentum in today's market but the upside still appeared to be the path of least resistance.

Incline dto tilt forward in the early proceedings were Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Texas Co., Phelps Dodge, Eastman Kodak, Owens-Illinois, Woolworth, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich and Southern Pacific.

Rising propensities were lacking for U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, American Telephone, Chesapeake & Ohio, Standard Oil (NJ), General Electric and Deere. Numerous issues were unchanged.

The belief that Monday's upswing, best on average since March 17, was largely the result of a sold-out condition and might not follow through inspired some profit taking brokers said. The war news still was a neutral factor and some potential buyers stood aside to await more light on pending profits limitation legislation.

Boardroom analysts studied the federal reserve summary disclosing loans to commerce, industry and agriculture by member banks in 101 cities were off $5,000,000 in the week ended April 1. It was the second straight weekly decline in this barometer after a lengthy climb.

City Sees Greatest Army Day Parade With Mixed Emotions

none of the spectators left their places. Mansfield was all out for its boys in service last night and intended to stay there.

The Grotto band covered one part of the line of march twice and the crowd thought it was seeing the head of a new division. After the parade started to break up at Mulberry street and Park avenue, the Grotto marched up Park avenue again, to their hall, arriving just behind the end of the parade.

Mansfield's youth which is going through its first war and Mansfield's veterans who have seen one, two and three campaigns marched together last night. School children and Boy and Girl Scout sections were mixed in with war veterans and doctors and nurses and business men.

Among the first of those in the parade was Patrolman Clare Kyler on a motorcycle. The last of the paraders was also Kyler, who doubled back for extra duty after the head of the parade reached the end of the line of march.

The Nutrition for Defense exhibit caused some comment as paraders on the float threw doughnuts and other articles of food to spectators as they pased.

The air was filled with a military note but still the new technique of "the civilian behind the the man behind the gun" showed through. Many of the persons marching in the parade were civilians who never took part in a parade before.

Workers from Mansfield industrial plants, volunteer nurses, civilian defense workers, State Guard members—all these were civilian groups. And they were trying to show the boys at the front that they were supporting them and thinking of them.

After the last of the marchers had passed, spectators swarmed all over the streets, milling about for more than an hour. Police routed traffic through the crowds which took on the appearance of a Mardi Gras with marchers in varicolored uniforms mixing with friends and relatives who had proudly watched them in the parade.

Army day in Mansfield came of age last night. After more than a score of years as nothing more than April 6, Army day emerged as a rallying point for the thousands of Mansfielders wishing to unite in a strong, symbolical "Salute to the Army."

RUSSIANS CUT STARAYA LINE

Berlin Admits Break-Through; Hitler Throws Clouds of Planes Into Struggle.

Soviet planes were shot down or destroyed on the ground yesterday.

DNB, the official German news agency, quoted Nazi general staff officers as saying that winter warfare had "completely exhausted the strength of the Soviet armies." DNB also reported that spring mud was "rendering roads impassable and thus precluding large-scale movements."

British RAF bombers, relentlessly continuing their great spring aerial offensive, struck again into the German Ruhr and Rhineland overnight despite "very bad weather" to blast Nazi war foundries. The attack followed a cross-channel thrust by more than 300 RAF bombers Sunday night.

"Damage was caused to houses in residential quarters," a Berlin statement said. "There were some dead and injured among the civilian population."

The German high command said a Nazi infantry division had driven back Soviet forces and taken numerous prisoners northeast of Orel, a railroad center 200 miles south of Moscow.

The Soviet information bureau said Red army men had killed 2,300 Germans in 48 hours of battle on the Leningrad front and recaptured a total of 18 more communities on the Kalinin front.
